Times Square Rescue

Thousands Cheer Firemen

NEW YORK (AP) — A Times Square area crowd of thousands cheered itself hoarse as firemen — risking death in flame and smoke with every step — rescued seven of their comrades trapped by a four-story building that collapsed on them.

One by one, the seven men were dragged out Thursday night and early today from behind blazing wreckage and tons of wood and metal which could have been their tomb.

None appeared to be seriously injured. The sixth man rescued — his face blackened and his uniform in smoking rags — sat up on a stretcher, grinned, waved to Fire Commissioner Robert O. Lowery and gasped: "Merry Christmas, commissioner." Lowery, stunned by the man's stammer and good cheer, snapped to attention and saluted. Then he shouted above the din: "Merry Christmas, fireman!"

Burst of Cheers
The episode brought a new burst of cheers from hundreds of firemen on the street and the spectators toward the front of the crowd watching the fire that wrecked an unoccupied building on 6th Avenue near 45th Street. Cause of the fire was not determined immediately. The seven men were trapped

Milwaukee Man Accused in Deaths Of Wife, Stepson

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The police chief at suburban Greenfield, Howard O. Wahlen, said a first degree murder warrant would be sought today against a 47-year old man who admitted slaying his wife and small stepson Thursday.

He said Paul M. Klisurich telephoned police in midafternoon to report finding the bodies of his wife, Delores, 45, and her son, Joseph 5, in the home. Wahlen said the victims had been beaten over the head with a two-quart saucepan and then choked. The chief said both died around 10 a. m. and that Joseph was killed while apparently going to his mother's aid.

U.S. Rushing Military Assistance to Jordan

Jet Fighters Sent to Aid In 'Defense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is rushing military equipment to Jordan in an apparent attempt to maintain a balance of power in the crisis-torn Middle East.

The State Department announced Thursday night the equipment included an undisclosed number of F104 jet fighters-bombers Jordan previously agreed to purchase, but it did not spell out the other kinds or

JERUSALEM (AP) — The road to Bethlehem was opened for Christmas pilgrims at 6 a.m. today as Israeli and Jordanian officials signaled the start of the traditional crossing of the armistice lines between Israel and Jordan.

The announcement came shortly after the Jordanian government radio in Amman announced the resignation of the government of Premier Wasfi T. The department said the timing of the announcement of arms aid and the resignation of Telli's government was nothing more than a coincidence.

Telli's 22-month-old government has been under fire both in Jordan and in other Arab countries since a Nov. 13 Israeli attack on the Jordanian village of El Samu. Its opponents demanded strong retaliatory action against the Israelis.

Mansfield Sees Vietnam-Style War in Thailand

Senate Leader Says 'Same Path' Is Being Trod

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield sees in troubled Thailand the seeds of another Vietnam-style war.

The early ingredients of the Vietnam war were there, he said. American troops are being sent to help cope with rebel forces, he added, and, as was once the case in Vietnam, they are cast as advisers, not combatants.

"We could very well have in prospect another Vietnam," Mansfield said in an interview Thursday. "Our policy in Thailand seems to be treading the same path."

And in Vietnam itself: "I look for a long, drawn-out struggle," Mansfield said. U.S. efforts at peace have produced "no progress toward a just settlement" and the danger of expanded conflict has increased in the past year.

'Out of Hand'
He saw a flicker of hope and a step in the right direction in the U.S. request that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant seek a Vietnam cease-fire.

"In a sense, it is a controlled, limited war," said the pensive, pipe-smoking Senate leader. "But it's a war which could get out of hand through miscalculation or accident."

"The war has escalated gradually, the dangers have increased," Mansfield said in a year-end assessment of the situation he analyzed 12 months ago as head of a Senate fact-finding team.

In a report published last Jan. 8, the Mansfield team warned that the war could engulf adjacent Laos, move into Cambodia and erupt, too, in Thailand.

Now, Mansfield said, the United States has 35,000 to 37,000 men in Thailand, "a very

Traditional Support Not Enough

Conservation Wants More Money

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The hunter and the fisherman who have traditionally provided the major support for the basic recreation services of the State Conservation Department cannot be relied on to pay for the enlarging needs of the program and the demands of the general public, Gov. Warren P. Knowles was told Thursday.

Lester P. Voigt, director of the conservation department, presented the agency's $54 million biennial budget proposal at a public hearing, and asserted his view that the revenue base of the department must be broadened to satisfy the increasing volume and variety of the demands being made upon it.

Steadily increasing Wisconsin population, a rising volume of tourist visitors and increasing leisure time of all Americans will bring ever more pressures for services related to outdoors recreation, he said.

Voigt said his "forebodings" have been increased because of evidence that sporting license revenues have not kept pace with the increase in tourist traffic, indicating that many Wisconsin vacation visitors today have interests unrelated to fishing and hunting.

The veteran department official made his comments at the invitation of the governor, who said he is concerned about the long-range prospects for the support of outdoors recreation.

Voigt suggested higher park user fees probably are inevitable, and indicated he would support in the new Legislature a raise in the seasonal park sticker from $2 to $3 and the daily admission fee from 50 cents to $1.

Camping fees also probably will rise to meet higher costs, and the $3 boat license fee covering a three-year period probably is too low in view of the rapidly rising costs of the

War Erupts on Three Fronts On Eve of Christmas Truce

North Vietnam Shore Batteries Bombard U. S. Destroyer in Gulf

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Vietnam war erupted today in land, sea and air action on the eve of the two-day Christmas truce.

Communist shore batteries bombarded and damaged the U.S. destroyer O'Brien off the North Vietnamese coast, and in the northern part of South Vietnam U.S. Marines reported 110 Communists killed after a five-hour battle.

U.S. B52 bombers made two more raids today, one of them in North Vietnam five miles above the Demilitarized Zone. U.S. fighter-bombers kept up their attacks on both North and South Vietnam.

A Viet Cong detachment battled Saigon police for almost two hours tonight on southwestern outskirts about 2½ miles from the heart of the capital, then broke contact and withdrew. Police sources said the action was limited to an exchange of small-arms fire and grenades. There was no report of casualties on either side.

Shrapnel Damage
A U.S. spokesman reported the O'Brien came under heavy shelling from North Vietnamese coastal batteries this morning and took two hits on her port side as well as shrapnel damage. The spokesman said casualties on the destroyer were light.

It was the first time in the war that a U.S. warship received direct hits from enemy shore batteries.

The spokesman said the O'Brien fired 130 rounds from her five-inch guns at the Communist batteries while A4 Skyhawk jets from the carrier Kitty Hawk also attacked the gun positions.

The coastal duel, lasting about 15 minutes, took place 25 miles north-northeast of Dong

Hoi. The U.S. spokesman said the O'Brien was four miles offshore in international waters of the Gulf of Tonkin.

Under Own Power
He said the O'Brien left the scene under her own power, presumably headed for a base for repairs.

With the 48-hour Christmas truce scheduled to start at 7 a.m. Saturday Saigon time (6 p.m. EST today) U.S. Marines were reported still exchanging fire this afternoon with a Communist force estimated at about 500 men.

Units of the 26th Marine Regiment reported killing 110 of the enemy in fighting since midnight in the scrub country 16 miles northwest of Hue. These enemy losses swelled to 175 the Communists reported killed by the Marines since they launched Operation Chinook Tuesday.

Marine casualties were termed light. The giant B52s flew in from

Merger of AMC Hinted After Release of Report

Firm Reportedly Ready to Enter Electronics Field

DETROIT (AP)—Rumors persisted today that American Motors Corp., which has had problems in the auto sales market, might be in the market for a merger.

The name most frequently mentioned was Litton Industries, Inc., of Beverly Hills, Calif., a widely diversified electronics firm.

AMC's top two men said "no comment" Thursday when asked about the Litton rumors. Today, AMC President Roy Abernethy said, "The reports have no more status than as a rumor. There is nothing to them."

There was no immediate comment from Litton officials.

Annual Report
The rumors popped up within hours after AMC released copies of its annual report showing that the firm had used up all but $4 million of a $75-million loan it negotiated with 24 banks.

The loans are secured by a mortgage on nearly all American Motors U.S. property and a pledge of the stock of its wholly owned subsidiaries.

AMC Board Chairman Robert B. Evans and Abernethy were in a meeting when word of the Litton rumors was sent in to them, with a newsman's request for comment.

Observers were surprised that the firm issued only a "no comment" rather than issuing a denial of the report. Failure to deny the report appeared to some sources to indicate there was something to it.

$12 Million Loss
AMC's car sales have dipped in the past four years and it reported a net loss of $12 million for its 1966 fiscal year, the first time since 1957 that it went into the red.

Evans, who became AMC's biggest single stockholder and its chairman this year, had said repeatedly that he would like to see the firm diversify its operations, now limited to the automotive and the home appliance fields.

Perseverance, Endurance, Patience

Westmoreland Predicts 'More of the Same' in 1967

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, today predicted "more of the same — heavy fighting" for American troops and their allies in Vietnam next year.

"We cannot expect in the future any dramatic turn of events. It will take perseverance, endurance on the battlefield and patience at home," Westmoreland said in an interview with the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Westmoreland, who said he could see no "military advantage" in extending any of the two-day holiday truces scheduled to begin Saturday, gave this outlook for American troops on the battlefields of Vietnam in 1967:

"During the coming year, I see really more of the same. I see a continued fight by the Vietnamese armed forces and her free world allies against the guerrilla, and I also see heavy fighting against the Viet Cong main force units and the North Vietnamese army troops."

"I believe the enemy will continue his guerrilla war," Westmoreland said, "but he will continue to move troops from North Vietnam to fight a so-called conventional war." Westmoreland said he thought the most important step forward in 1966 was "in stopping the initiative by the main force or conventional forces, particularly those of North Vietnam."

He said evidence the enemy is having morale problems as a result of the turn of the fighting over the past year has shown up in the number of prisoners taken, the number of defectors and from interrogation of prisoners.

Asked how many more American troops he thinks may be needed "to get the job done" in Vietnam, Westmoreland said: "I frankly cannot answer. This depends on many factors, and only time will tell."

There now are nearly 375,000 U.S. military personnel in this country. A gradual but steady buildup is continuing.

Of reports that U.S. ground troops soon will be sent to the Mekong River Delta, Westmoreland said: "No decision has been made at this time to move troops to the delta at any specific date in the future. It is possible during the coming year that there may be some American troops deployed in that area."

Westmoreland said the major problems now faced in Vietnam are twofold. The first, he said, is the "problem of translating the nature of this war to the people at home, who must understand the situation if they are to support it. I think that some of the young men who have served in this environment will be some of the best emissaries in explaining the real nature of this conflict."

"Now secondly, I would say it's a matter of patience. We must have patience to deal with this very complex problem. We cannot expect in the future any dramatic turn of events. It will take perseverance, endurance on the battlefield and patience at home."

Singers Dorothy Collins, 40, of Hit Parade fame, and Ron Holgate, 29, were married Wednesday at Vero Beach, Fla. After a day in Miami, the bridegroom flew to Las Vegas, where he is to begin work on a new show. The bride will spend Christmas in Vero Beach with her two children. It is the second marriage for both.

In Phoenix, Ariz., this week there was one more tie between the Mennuti and Dodson families. Gerald Dodson married another Mennuti girl. His two brothers had married her two sisters earlier.

At Bake Sale

In Texas Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and daughter, Luci

Nugent, attended a bake sale held by a dozen clubs at Johnson City Park. Mrs. Johnson took home jam and Luci was laden with cupcakes and cookies. Luci has refused comment on rumors she is expecting a Nugent heir.

Miss Anna Klym, 20, decided to give up her studies and return to the U.S. where, she says, "men are men, not daisies." She stirred up a row among students at Leeds University when she wrote English men "have no sex appeal."

And women everywhere are making one last batch of cookies, one more plate of fudge, wrapping last minute gifts, planning Christmas menus, sending a card to a forgotten friend, cleaning the house, putting up trees, and wishing their families and dear ones, "Merry Christmas."

So do we all!

Merry Christmas to all, and...

gentle manner. Equal opportunity was in evidence when the store hired Mrs. Sophia Deptula, 53, as chief listener to the requests of children. Bundled in fur and chin whiskers, the only difference noted was that Santa seemed "nicer" than usual.

Lady Bird Has Birthday Party

On hand for the anniversary were the President, daughters Lynda Bird and Luci, and son-in-law Patrick J. Nugent. The White House press office gave out no information on the gifts the First Lady received, but a birthday cake was ready.

First Family Tells Plans For Traditional Christmas

By MARTHA COLE
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — All is ready for Christmas at the LBJ Ranch, with holly and mistletoe, a tree and turkey.

The family of President Johnson plans to open its gifts Christmas Eve, the Texas White House said today.

Johnson's ranch house on the banks of the Pedernales River 65 miles west of Austin had Christmas wreaths of green spruce, pine cone and bronze bells on the doors.

The Christmas tree — a 6-foot balsam — was in the President's office. Atop it was an angel in a blue brocade dress, the gift of German friends years ago.

Also among the decorations was a hand-crafted wreath given the President by the Northern Cheyenne Indians of Montana.

The holly and mistletoe came from the ranch land. In one living room, a reindeer head that rack got a red nose for a stunt as Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

Here for Christmas will be the President and Mrs. Johnson; older daughter Lynda; younger daughter Luci and her husband Patrick J. Nugent; and other relatives the White House did not name.

The main Christmas meal will be served early Christmas afternoon. It will include turkey, both domestic and wild; the traditional cornbread stuffing of the South; string beans with almonds; sweet potatoes with marshmallows; hot homemade rolls; and cranberry salad.

For dessert, it's ambrosia — oranges and coconut — a traditional Southern dish and angel food cake.

Melvin Bellis Both Want Out Of Marriage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Model Pat Montandon is suing attorney Melvin Belli for divorce, saying their October wedding in Japan was invalid.

Miss Montandon filed suit Wednesday in San Francisco Superior Court charging the Shinto rite marriage in Sapporo, Japan, Oct. 12 was not recorded as required by Japanese law.

She also said the ceremony was performed in Japanese, that she was never given any document to sign consenting to the marriage.

Miss Montandon asked the court to declare she was not legally married to Belli, or, if she was, to annul the union on grounds of fraud. She also alleged extreme cruelty.

Belli, who has written a book on Japanese law, said the marriage is completely valid.

The Swinging Set

For the Record

BY SYLVIE RAICE

I attended my first recording session at the round Capitol Records building — a landmark in Hollywood. It was also "The Tombstones" first record. The group was playing when I entered the large bare recording room. There were five Tombstones — all in black pants and boots, one with a black hat. They were doing a rock 'n' roll number called, "Let's Do The Mule." Sunny Jay, on sax, was also the singer — a plump smiley fellow with talent. Everybody was tired. "They played late last night," explained their manager, a youngish woman in a pop black and white vinyl suit. "They play at The Big Beat in Palo Alto. Stanford U. is nearby and Foothill College."

A young good-looking fellow emerged from the control room. "Got to do something with that middle part," he says. The musicians look back at him seriously, respectfully. The young man is Lex de Azevedo, the producer of the single. Lex sings what he wants. He goes to the piano and plays it — skillfully. He takes a repetitive, monotonous section and breaks it up interestingly.

Adds a Guitar Buzz

It's great when the boys try it. "Okay," he says. "Now, take it from the top." (That means from the beginning.) He goes back to the control room. They play. He signals them to stop. "Try putting a buzz on your guitar," he tells Doug Holt, the lead guitar. Doug attaches something that makes the guitar buzz. Overhead there are three mikes — two in the center — one at the back near drummer, Fred Malcuit.

Lex nixes the buzz. "Sounds too fuzzy," he says. He confers with a sound man at the panels. "From the top again." The boys play. Patiently Sunny sings the lyrics again; everything's going fine, but Lex comes out again. "Look — I want this kind of beat!" He taps it out, sings it. The drummer tries. He can't get it. "I'm not used to this new way —" he says. Lex is patient. They try till the drummer gets it. Lex stops them again. "Give me a B Minor," he says to Fred McGinty on the bass guitar. (Fred wears the black hat). Fred looks blank, somewhat sheepish. Lex realizes Fred can't read music. Doug fills the breach. Lex starts to build a new sound, a new variation, again at the piano. "We'll try it again—then break for ten minutes."

Sound is Altered

They play and I am astonished at how the sound has changed since I came in. I never realized there was such a person as a record producer and that he could practically make a sound. The boys wander over, wanting to know what I'm writing. "That Lex is something," they each say. "We thought we knew music — until we met him."

I asked them how they got to Capitol Records. Doug explained: "Somebody in management of the Kingston Trio heard us at The Big Beat and got in touch with Capitol; then Capitol got in touch with us —" They play the Big Beat. "We play polkas, too. It's the newest craze with the teens."

He Knows Music

I buttonholed Lex de Azevedo. "You're amazing," I said. He shrugged. "I just know music." Lex is 23. He has a degree in composition and conducting from the University of Southern California. He was accompanist to the King Sisters (his mother is Alice King) and to the Four Preps and Roberta Shaw. Then he went off to Brazil for three years doing missionary work to the Mormon Church! A year later, he was back as A and R (Artists and repertoire) Man for Capitol Records — his hits, Mrs. Miller, Kay Starr, Bobby Rydell. He writes pop, rock 'n' roll; conducts — in fact, was scheduled that week to conduct at UCLA "a little symphonic something I wrote." He wants to do everything "even score for the movies." As a producer he decides who is to record, supervises arrangements and recording sessions. In full charge of "his" record or album. The Tombstones were lucky, I thought, to have such a talent guiding them.

I listen to a rock record differently since then. I try to detect the bare bones and figure out how it was fleshed out in the recording studio. Anyway, it just shows you what interesting jobs there are if you have a degree in music!

Your Problems

NEAR ANN LANDERS:

The letter from the 20-year-old boy who was trying to get away with that big-brother act prompts me to write this letter. My son is also 20 and he is dating a 14-year-old girl, but he has made it plain that this is a brother-sister relationship. My husband and I have done our best to point out the dangers of this set-up, but to no avail. We have warned him that the flesh proves too weak, he is asking for statutory rape charges and—or sudden marriage. Our son says I am overly critical of the girl and not to worry.

I talked to "Lolita's" mother when our son first started to take her out. I thought perhaps they didn't know his age, but they did. They are not only concerned — they are promoting together. Our son has been invited to their summer cottage for weekends and the girl has no curfew, even on school nights. She came over here one day last summer wearing the skimpiest bikini I have ever seen. My husband was home at the time and his eyes almost fell out of his head. He said, "That is the most overblown 14-year-old I have ever seen."

What are parents of boys supposed to do? I'm afraid that warning him again would make as much sense as telling a pup not to eat a plate of fresh hamburger that has been set on the floor. —Blue in the Face Mother

Dear Blue Face: I congratulate you on your realistic evaluation of the situation. There isn't a thing you can do now except to hope the boy's common sense will triumph over the chemistry. Good luck to all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a very nice person. We have many friends and he has always been 100 per cent trustworthy so far as I know, but I'm terribly worried about something. I suspect he is stealing. I hate the word but I don't know how else to say it.

My husband works in a store. Two nights a week he closes up. On these nights he comes home with huge bags of merchandise.

We are having a hard time making ends meet but we are not destitute.

I don't dare accuse him of stealing because I have no proof but I know how much money he makes and where it goes. He can't possibly be paying for these enormous bags of merchandise out of his salary. I am terrified that one day he will get caught. but I'm afraid to bring up the subject. Please tell me what to do—Getting Grey

Dear Grey: Tell your husband you know he is not paying cash for the merchandise he lugs home and that you shudder to think of the bill he is running up. Tell him from now on unless he shows you a receipt for cash you are going to return everything the next day.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Post-Crescent, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1966)

'Paper' Dress Passes Fire Safety Test

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fire department order for a department store chain to stop selling paper-like dresses has been rescinded, and the dresses are back on sale.

The dresses — priced from $2 to $40 — passed state tests and were found acceptable, said Fire Capt. Jake Dukes. They were ordered removed from sale at Joseph Magnin Stores after a customer questioned whether they were safe.

"The dress tested by officials of the Los Angeles Fire Department was not a paper garment," said Louis Segal, fire prevention chemist — engineer with the state fire marshal's office. "It was a polyester plastic imposed on glass fibers." "This material is indeed flammable, but no more so than many dresses hanging in closets all over the United States," Segal said.

Sheinwold Greek Meets Greek in Tournament

When Mrs. Hermine Baron, of Los Angeles, played against Mrs. Dorothy Hayden, of New York, in the Team Selection Tournament last month in Pittsburgh, it was a case of Greek meeting Greek. As the only women in the tournament, each wanted to outdo the other. As usual, some man had to suffer.

B. Jay Becker, Mrs. Hayden's partner, got himself in the middle of the battle when he played today's hand at four spades.

He won the heart opening lead in his hand and tried a club finesse at once.

East won with the king of clubs and returned a club for his partner to ruff. Mrs. Baron ruffed wickedly with the jack of spades and returned a heart to dummy's ace.

The hand had begun badly, but Becker could still salvage his game if he worked out Mrs. Baron's trump holding. He would make his contract by leading a trump if he knew that Mrs. Baron had the ace-ten of trumps left. But if the jack of trumps had been used truthfully, it meant that Mrs. Baron had either no trumps left or only the ace of trumps.

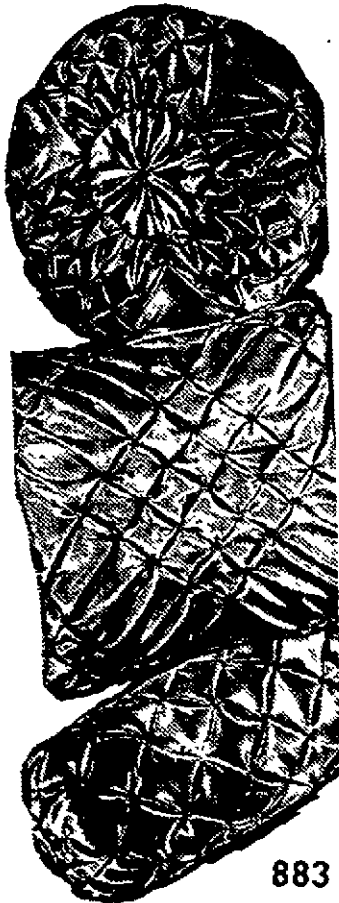

Relies on Opponent
Relying on Mrs. Baron's truthfulness, Becker led a high club from dummy. Alas, women were deceivers ever. Mrs. Baron produced the ten of spades to win the trick and eventually took the setting trick with the ace of trumps.

If you can stop snickering long enough to notice, the hand has two instructive points. First, a simple falsecard (ruffing with the jack instead of the ten) can be very effective even against a great star. Second, believe it or not, men sometimes have trouble understanding what women are doing at the bridge table.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S A J 10; H 9 8 6 5 3; D 10 7 6; C 2. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one heart. Hearts will make a satisfactory trump suit if partner has three or more hearts of any size. You can hardly expect him to bid a three-card heart suit if you fail to bid a five-card suit.

Mrs. Kennedy Also Objected to Previous Book

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Death of a President" was not the first book which Mrs. John F. Kennedy objected to prior to publication. The New York Times reported today.

The Times said she attempted to block publication of "White House Nannie," Miss Maude Shaw's account of "my years with Caroline and John Kennedy Jr."

Michael Borissow, the book's English publisher, said Wednesday night that Sol M. Linowitz, then an official of Xerox Corp., interceded at Mrs. Kennedy's request in the fall of 1965, the Times reported.

The newspaper also said: Borissow said Linowitz contacted him in London and the publisher agreed to come to New York to "discuss it with Mrs. Kennedy, because we were anxious not to upset her unnecessarily."

As a result of meetings with her representatives here, Borissow said, "about 100 words were deleted, small details, nothing important, principally about how the children were told about the assassination."

The deleted portions were things "Mrs. Kennedy considered a little too personal," he said.

Borissow, managing director of Angley Books and chairman of Southern News Services, Ltd., spoke to the Times from London by telephone. Linowitz is now U.S. delegate to the Organization of American States.

Wrap in Luxury During Holidays

The "Snow Princess" look makes news in after-five holiday collections this year.

It's embodied in ultra-elegant evening coats . . . long, fur-trimmed, and in glowing jewel colors. Some of the most queenly-looking styles come in luxurious plush fabrics like embossed velveteen and "crinkled" corduroy, a cotton with the look of crushed velvet.

Featuring ribs that are wavy and rippled instead of straight, crinkled corduroy is a favorite choice for dressy holiday coats. One of the most glamorous is ankle-length and cut along slim princess lines. It has a high round collar and ring cuffs made of soft white rabbit fur.

The same richly textured fabric, this time in a deep plum purple, is chosen for an above-the-knee theatre coat. Buttoned off-center, it has a snug high collar framing the face.

Embossed cotton velveteen is used for another dressy short coat with a flared A-line silhouette. In stylish holly red, the plush fabric has a cut-pile surface embossed to resemble moire.

The most romantic-looking evening coats, however, are long and fur-trimmed, like one new cotton velveteen style. Beautiful chinchilla-dyed rabbit is used for a ring collar, for cuffs, and as a border for the floor-length hem.

"You Meet the Nicest People at TONI'S!"

'Little Things' Call For Big Thank You

DETROIT (AP) — It was all about a woman who did little things for little people. Nothing big. But those little people — pupils at Franklin Elementary School — wanted to mark those little things and honor the woman, Rose Mozham.

Principal John Soule told a little lie — that he wanted to see Mrs. Mozham to talk to her about her son, Richard, last of 10 Mozham children to attend Franklin.

From her delicatessen, Mrs. Mozham hurried the half-block to the school. She was led to an auditorium. About 100 students were there.

Coats, Jackets Make Stylish Yuletide Wrap
This year's favorite Christmas wrapping for fashion-minded females is a smart coat or jacket. Santa's pack will be popping with apparel of cloth or smooth, suede, sheepskin, split cowhide and embossed leathers.

A gift package to please any woman is the one holding a handsome lightweight coat in a flattering silhouette. . . be it straight and narrow, double-breasted, or modified tent. Whether she's a suburban matron or a big city secretary, she'll treasure its comfort, mobility and good looks. You'll find an infinite variety of styling touches on leather coats for added interest. These range from such soft feminine detailing as fur trim, jeweled buttons, quilting and frog closings, to tailored stitching, seam construction, and brass or wood fasteners. And to double her delight, you might choose a coat with coordinated leather or wool dress.

Fashionable Gifts
Give her "strip tease" styling with a coat or jacket that can shed its fur collar for a less dressy look or unzip its lining of shearing or wool in warmer weather. A jacket will prove an always-right, always-ready partner for so many things in her wardrobe: skirts; slacks; shorts; dresses; jumpers. Jacket types this year include blazers, cardigans, cutaways, shirtwaists and classic sport-coat models.

Sure to gladden the clothes-loving heart of the "best dressed" beauty on your gift list is a striking suit. This season's suit collection comes in ultra-fashionable and classic styles, high-fashion and standard colors. Many also have their own blouses, scarves or hats.

Other goodies to light up her Christmas tree are dresses — both long and short; pants and skirts; tops of all kinds. Beautiful ski-wear will bring excitement to her wintertime wardrobe, on and off the slopes.

Principal John Soule told a little lie — that he wanted to see Mrs. Mozham to talk to her about her son, Richard, last of 10 Mozham children to attend Franklin.

From her delicatessen, Mrs. Mozham hurried the half-block to the school. She was led to an auditorium. About 100 students were there.

Tears Start
By the time the principal stood up, Mrs. Mozham realized what was happening and she began to dab her eyes with a tissue.

"Boys and girls, ever since some of you were born, there has been a lady here in the neighborhood who has helped many boys and girls," Soule said.

"The kids need understanding," Mrs. Mozham said. "I gave them that. That's all."

Mary Reeves, a school-crossing guard, remembered more.

"She gave time and her money to the kids when it was necessary," Mrs. Reeves said. "When the children needed something, they would go to Mrs. Mozham and she would help them, even if it cost her something."

Mrs. Mozham's place was where the children wound up when they didn't eat in the school cafeteria. They bought lunch and candy and played the juke box. Teachers and crossing

Wise Planning Helps Travelers

In an exclusive interview, Santa, as he is affectionately known here, said: "Getting to Grandma's is a great deal easier today than it was in the days when everyone used a sleigh. In those days, Mama had to pack just as much for her baby as she did for the rest of the family combined."

A large supply of baby clothing, diapers and all that formula making and bottling equipment added up to almost a sleigh-full in itself. But, Santa added, modern disposable products and up-to-date equipment have greatly reduced the packing-for-baby problem.

Santa's first suggestion is to eliminate everything you really don't need, and to take only a few days' supply of any items that can be purchased when you arrive.

Santa also suggests that if you share a suitcase with baby, put his things on top. You'll find you have enough room to bring back all the gifts collected from Santa and Grandma.

Woman Charged in Rural Chilton Death

Cora Belle Young to Answer Second Degree Murder Count

MANITOWOC — Cora Belle Young, 29, route 4, Chilton, Thursday afternoon was charged with second degree murder after the man with whom she had been living was found dead of bullet wounds early Thursday morning in their home near the Calumet-Manitowoc county line.

Judge Harold W. Mueller, Manitowoc County Court Branch 2, continued the case from day to day to allow the woman to consult an attorney. She was jailed in lieu of $20,000 bond.

The complaint against the woman was issued using the name Cora Belle Young, "also known as Cora Belle Orr."

Charged in Death

The charge stems from the death of Robert G. Orr, 38, route 4, Chilton. Orr died early Thursday morning of two .22 caliber bullet wounds in the chest.

Manitowoc County authorities said they were called to Orr's home at 6:10 a.m. Thursday by the woman who was later charged with murder. After an investigation of about four hours, county police took the woman to Manitowoc where the charge was made.

During an early afternoon hearing in County Court, Cora Young told the court she had been living with Orr for more than three years. She said she was the mother of nine children.

Found Indigent

Two children, ages 2 and 3, were living with the couple when the shooting occurred. During the hearing, the woman was found indigent by Judge Mueller.

The defendant said she lived in Waterloo, Iowa, before moving to the farm house in Manitowoc County last July.

Orr was a foundry worker at the Brillion Iron Works.

Alfred M. Endres, 56, 608 S. Memorial Drive, received a nose injury about 6:30 p.m. when his car struck a parked car owned by Paul J. Vandenberg, 912 W. Commercial St.

And he will be the first in 25 years to be elected to the top assembly job after only two terms of legislative service.

Of the 32 assembly speakers since 1890, 35-year-old Froehlich is one of the six youngest. He joins the ranks of well-known Wisconsin legislative names including Superior's Irvine L. Lenroot, who became speaker in 1901 at 34, and John W. Eber of Milwaukee who in 1927 was elected speaker at 32.

Milwaukee's Cornelius T. Young became speaker in 1933 at age 30, Minocqua's Paul Alfonsi in 1937 at age 29, and Richland Center's Vernon W. Thomson in 1939 at age 34.

While many well-known men have been speakers of the Assembly, only one, Vernon Thomson, became Governor. Two former speakers have been elected to the U.S. House of Representatives, one to the U.S. Senate, and one became Lieutenant Governor.

The speaker has been the presiding officer of the assembly since Wisconsin became a state in 1848. Until the 1880s, legislators were elected annually and the legislature was convened every year. Then the biennial system of meeting every two years was adopted. Sixty-five assemblymen have served in the post of speaker since 1848.

Students' Interest High on Promotion

Fox Valley Plants Schedule Open House for Collegians

Fox Cities paper companies are anticipating a large turnout for Tuesday's "Operation Look Homeward", their open-house program for vacationing college students.

The program begins at 9 a.m. at the Institute of Paper Chemistry, 1043 E. South River St., Appleton. Purpose is to acquaint home-town students with papermaking career possibilities in this area.

All collegians who show up will be accommodated. Chairman Harley Barney of Fox River Paper Corp. said. However, he noted that last year's turnout of more than 325 was 100 more than had been expected, causing some overcrowding. He urged those attending to make sure they give themselves plenty of time.

Registrations have been mounting steadily. Last Christmas's program was greeted enthusiastically. Students not only found an opportunity for career counseling but a chance to get together with other students from this area.

Firms cooperating in the program are: American Can Co., Marathon Paper Products Group, Appleton Coated Paper Co., Bergstrom Paper Co., Combined Paper Mills, Inc., Fox River Paper Corp., Kimberly-Clark Corp., Menasha Corp., Riverside Paper Corp., Thimble Pulp and Paper Co. and The Institute of Paper Chemistry.

Former Shop, Trouble Spot for Police, Set For Wrecking Crew

A long-time trouble spot for Appleton police is being eliminated.

Wrecking crews this week began razing a residence and former barber shop at 121 S. Memorial Drive.

Permission for razing the building was issued Monday by city officials. The property is owned by Louis Pappakostas, Vallejo, Calif.

The shop and house have been vacant for more than a year. It was formerly the site of the Crystal Barber Shop.

During the extended period of vacancy, complaints were repeatedly lodged with city police. Vagrants have been arrested in the building and most of the windows were broken.

Pappakostas reportedly will retain ownership of the property. The owner's son, James, travelled from California to negotiate the razing transactions, city officials said today.

Jerome Vosters, 48, route 4, Appleton, father of 11, is being held in the Outagamie County Jail in lieu of posting a $2,000 bond. The bond was set after he was arraigned late Thursday afternoon on a charge of aggravated battery brought in connection with the beating of his wife.

Vosters, who appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 with his attorney, asked for a preliminary hearing which Judge Gustave J. Keller set for Dec. 29.

In Hospital

Judge Keller said he would delay the preliminary hearing if Mrs. Vosters is not out of the hospital by Dec. 29. Outagamie County sheriff's investigators said she is being treated for severe cuts and bruises on her face, fractures of facial bones, broken teeth, and other face and head injuries.

Felony Charge

Vosters, who told the court he is a farmer and a mill worker, had a bandage under his right eye and his right hand was heavily bandaged. The felony charge against Vosters alleges that he used his hands and feet in beating his wife.

Police, who were called to the Vosters home at 12:40 a.m. Thursday, were told that Vosters came home, broke several windows and allegedly then struck his wife on the face and head. Several of the couple's children were home at the time. They have since been placed in the homes of relatives.

Mrs. Barbara Kappell, 1755 Charlotte St., this morning forfeited a $29 bond in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on a disorderly conduct charge brought after she was found pounding on a door about 1 a.m. Dec. 17.

Appleton police said the woman refused to tell them why she was pounding on the door of a building in the 200 block of N. Morrison Street.

Five Organizations Submit Names for Citizens Committee

Mayor Will Pick Advisory Group From Lists Submitted by 37 Clubs

Five Appleton service organizations have given Mayor George L. Buckley a list of names recommended for appointment to the proposed citizens advisory committee on community improvement.

The groups responded Thursday and today to a letter of Dec. 15 in which the mayor asked for three names from each of 37 organizations in the city.

Form Committee

The committee is being formed to "explore and examine many facets of the physical community," the letter said.

After the first meeting, which Buckley said would probably be in mid-January, the group will make recommendations to the Appleton Council on community betterment programs.

"Its effectiveness will be related directly to the diligence of the people serving on the committee," the mayor said.

Approximately 30 persons will serve on the advisory committee. While plans remain tentative as to the actual organization of the group, City Planner Walter Rasmussen today said an executive committee probably would be named.

Keep File

Names recommended by the service clubs but not included as part of the 30-member committee will be kept on file for subcommittee activities, Rasmussen indicated.

Organizations submitting lists of names to the mayor for possible appointment are Kiwanis Club of Appleton, B'nai B'rith, Outagamie County Bankers Association, Appleton Rotary and Fox Valley Chapter of Women in Construction.

UCS Drive Falls $19,400 Short of Goal

Liaison Personnel To Contact 14 Agencies on Budgets

The 1966 United Red Feather Campaign has now collected $245,485 of its $264,835 goal for 14 agencies.

Since the total is $19,485 short of minimum needs for the agencies as budgeted before the campaign began, the United Community Services (UCS) board of directors said, at a meeting Thursday, there probably will have to be cuts in agency budgets.

The board directed the budget committee, headed by John C. Wollage, to ask its liaison people to contact each agency, to discuss 1967 budgets relative to the shortage.

Familiar With Needs

The liaison people previously worked with the agencies in preparing 1967 budgets, and are familiar with their programs and financial needs.

Agencies and their liaison persons are Boy Scouts, Mrs. Joseph Foley and Don Jabas; Visiting Nurse Association, John D. Mueller and Melvern Hemmen; UCS, John C. Wollage; Girl Scouts, Richard Van Sistine and Max Hensel; Appleton Apostolate, Tom McKenzie; Vincent Deschmidt; Salvation Army, W. A. Close and Marilyn Olson; Golden Age Club, Hemmen; Lutheran Social Services, Mrs. Jake Mathews; Outagamie Mental Health Association, Gilbert Relien and James Hebbe; Children's Service, Relien and Mrs. LeRoy Stohman; YMCA, Olson and Max Hensel; Red Cross, McKenzie and Mrs. Stohman; and Catholic Activities Council, Hebbe.

C of C Reports Speakers Stolen

KAUKAUNA — Police are investigating the theft of two large horn speakers, valued at $250, which are owned by the Chamber of Commerce and used to play music in the business district during the holidays.

The speakers were taken from atop the Feller Building, 171 W. Wisconsin Ave.

Vandalism to pulp stored in the Chicago and North Western Railway buildings is also being investigated by police. Charles Ehke, personnel director for Combined Paper Mills, reported the warehouse entered sometime within the past few days and pulp piles tipped and strewn about the building.

Combined Paper Mills leases the warehouse space from the Chicago and North Western.

Dairy Industry Is Central Theme for Agriculture Parley

Substantial Awards Await Those Accepting Challenge, Says Dean

Wisconsin's dairy industry, the state's most important agricultural industry, will be featured at the College of Agriculture's 1967 Agricultural Industries Conference Jan. 24-27 at Madison.

"The dairy industry faces challenges — big ones," said Glenn S. Pound, Dean of the College of Agriculture. "But there are substantial rewards in the picture if we wish to capitalize on them."

"That is our purpose in inviting you to this conference: to share ideas as to what is ahead of us and how all phases of the dairy industry and consuming public can best respond to the challenges and opportunities of the future."

A special "Wisconsin Dairy Forum" will open conference activities on Jan. 24. The forum lists nationally recognized speakers who will explore the future of the dairy industry from the producers', marketing and processing industries', and consumers' points of view.

Supporting the general conference dairy theme are a number of other section programs. Sectional programs will concentrate on mechanization and new equipment on the dairy farm; future trends in dairy marketing; improved dairy feed production; new management techniques available to dairy farmers, and dairy trends, problems and policies.

Dairy Manufacturer's and Dairy Plant Fieldmen's Conferences are also scheduled in conjunction with the Agricultural Industries Conference.

A Consumer's Day program will be held Jan. 25 and should be of special interest to women attending the conference. Speakers on this program will explain diet and dairy products, factors making up the price of dairy products, and consumer decisions at the dairy case. Substitute and new dairy products will also be discussed.

In addition to the dairy programs, special sectional programs have been arranged for poultrymen, rural writers, musical directors, motel-hotel-rest operators, and county agricultural committees. Organizations holding programs in conjunction with the conference include the Wisconsin Beef Breeders and Feeders, Wisconsin Livestock and Meat Council, and the Wisconsin Muck Farmers.

The annual honorary recognition banquet will be held Tuesday night in Great Hall of the Memorial Union. Two new musical productions will be presented by the Wisconsin Idea Theatre on Wednesday night. Admission to both productions is free.

Excitement and Expectation filled the air at the annual Christmas party the Rotary Club had for the children of Morgan School A turkey dinner and presents were definite highlights of the day but nothing could top the pleasure in the special guest, Santa, as witnessed by the expression of pleasure on the faces of Kim Vanden Wyngaard and Randy Redlin. After Radio Message

Donations for Chippewas Pour In

BY PETER GENIESSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH - MENASHA — A simple news item, read over radio station WNAM early this morning, brought out the true Christmas spirit in the Twin City residents.

Announcer Robert Peterson noted the Chippewa Indians in Michigan's Upper Peninsula would have a slim holiday season since fire had destroyed the gifts stored in a church near Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday night.

Moments later, the switchboard at the radio station was swamped with calls from citizens wanting to help. The First National Bank of Neenah replied it would handle the donations: people called to say they would volunteer their services to pick up used clothing items, the members of the Boy's Brigade would pack the boxes, and the Neenah fire station would act as headquarters for the clothes and toys.

Within the Hour

Less than an hour after the appeal went out over the radio, the bank had received more than two dozen calls, pledging money to help the Chippewas have a merrier Christmas. Others stopped by the bank with checks and cash for the cause.

Two youngsters brought their Christmas savings to the bank — a total of $1.50 — and donated it to the impoverished Indians.

Dan Paulick, director of the Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh news bureau, volunteered his services to handle the collection of money and gifts in the Oshkosh area.

Arrangements are presently being made to truck the toys and clothing to the Bay Mills Indian Reservation near the Soo.

Actually, the appeal was first aired by a Minneapolis radio station early Thursday which heard the plight of the 182 Chippewas on the reservation.

About three and one-half tons of food, toys and clothing collected chiefly in the Detroit area were lost when fire destroyed St. Catherine's Catholic mission church and the attached parish hall during the dinner hour Wednesday.

The community was left with enough in cash donations to feast on turkey and the trimmings, but nothing else. The Brimley township hall, about five miles from the reservation, will be the site of the Christmas dinner on Tuesday, instead of Sunday in the parish hall.

Authorities said the cash donations will be used to help rebuild the church and hall.

Employment Up 1,000 Jobs Over Last Year

NEENAH - MENASHA — Total employment in the Neenah-Menasha-Appleton labor market shows an increase of almost 1,000 for November over the same month a year ago, according to A. P. Engbreton, district manager for the Wisconsin State Employment Service.

However, employment was down 154 from September. Total employment of the 102 reporting employers was 27,331.

Engbreton reported the gains over a year ago were mostly the result of increases in manufacturing employment, particularly in the paper and allied products, and printing and publishing fields. Further increases would have been recorded, he said, if qualified workers had been available to fill job openings.

Job openings totaled 657 in mid-November with 47 per cent of those openings calling for skilled and trainable workers in the industrial field.

Of the people seeking employment, 29 per cent are under 22 years of age, 69 per cent between 22 and 44 and only two per cent over the age of 45.

By employment category, the increases over one year ago were manufacturing, up 571; contract construction, up 119; transportation, communication and utilities, up 41; wholesale and retail trade, down 14; finance, insurance and real estate, up 53; services and miscellaneous, up 114, and government, up 60.

Employment changes from September to November were: manufacturing, down 350; contract construction, down 20; wholesale and retail trade, up 199; finance, insurance and real estate, up 15; transportation, communication and utilities, down 20; services and miscellaneous, up 14, and government, up 8.

An Open Letter

Stevie Has Gifts Stolen; Grandmother Asks Return

How would you like to hear about an eight-year-old boy who went Christmas shopping at Valley Fair?

He had five dollars to buy gifts for his four brothers and a sister, and, of course, mom and dad.

He did a real good job of buying all the gifts, only to have them all stolen while he reached in his pocket to get change for the bus fare.

Little Steve Lotzer was a happy little boy when he started out from home to do his shopping and a very sad boy when he returned home.

I could give him this five dollars to buy things again for his family, but it just wouldn't be the same because Stevie saved his money for a long time in order to shop for these gifts for Christmas.

I hope whoever the thief was, will have a very guilty conscience and won't be able to sleep nights for a long time.

Is this what you call the spirit of Christmas?

I don't and I'm very sure Steve doesn't either.

I hope you print this letter for a sad little boy. Maybe the thief who stole them will be good enough to return them.

Girl Honored For Saving Youth's Life

Modest 16-Year-Old Pulled Neighbor, 7, From Little Lake

MENASHA — If Elizabeth Hengstler, 16, were a little less concerned about others and a little more inclined to fear, a seven-year-old neighbor boy might not be looking forward to Christmas this year — and Elizabeth might not have found herself the shy center of praise and gratitude.

But, when she saw Timmy Erdmann, 7, up to his neck in water and clinging to the edge of a hole in the Little Lake Butte des Morts ice two Sundays ago, her reaction was quick and instinctive. "I just pulled him out," she recalled today. "It came naturally."

A Check

The story came to light today when Patrolman Roy Rollins, of the Menasha police department, announced as president of Local 34, Professional Policemen's Association, that the police group plans to give Elizabeth a $25 check in recognition of her bravery.

Police said later the "air bubble" was probably an oversized ice fishing hole left behind after a fisherman moved his shanty.

Elizabeth said the other youngsters were playing a noisy game and she apparently was the only one who heard a cry for help. She saw the two boys had fallen through the ice. Timmy was wearing skates and Dennis was wearing boots with his winter clothing. Dennis had apparently fallen on top of Timmy.

The girl ran to the spot and by the time she got there, Dennis had scrambled out of the hole. "The other one was up to his neck, so I just pulled him out," Elizabeth recalled.

"I wasn't frightened until afterwards," she said. Then she said she began to realize, "It could have been me that went in, or somebody else. There might have been nobody around. "Someone might have drowned."

She took the boys home and explained to their parents what had happened, then went home herself. Her mother said Elizabeth mentioned the incident, but her parents were unaware until later the full details and the distance from shore it had happened.

C of C Happy In Dues Drive

NEENAH - MENASHA — Response to the new Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce "fair share dues" plan has been very good, according to Charles Littlefield, chamber membership chairman.

Littlefield said they expect to complete contacts by the end of next week with members who have not yet paid their dues.

Under the fair share dues program, the chamber is seeking to increase its budget from $19,000 to $30,000 per year. The dues under this program are based on certain criteria in various categories, such as number of employees for manufacturing firms and sales volume for retail establishments.

Legionnaires Protest Veteran Affairs Merger

MADISON (AP)—The American Legion unleashed a fusillade of protest today against a government reorganization plan that would merge the present state department of veterans affairs with the departments of welfare and health.

"The effect of the Kellett commission's recommendation would classify veterans' services as public welfare," said William H. Emanuel of To-mah, state commander of the American Legion.

Emanuel said the merger would not save any money and would ignore traditional recognition of veterans' sacrifices.

Protests Anticipated

Widespread protests from veterans groups had been anticipated well in advance of the blast issued by the Legion in a formal statement today.

The Kellett task force studying streamlining of state government once scrapped plans for the merger in the wake of loud objections from veterans groups, but restored the plan at a Dec. 7 session.

Under the present package to be offered to the 1967 Legislature, health, welfare and veterans affairs would be combined in a new department of social services.

Efficient Administration

Task force members reasoned that, with increasing numbers of citizens receiving veterans benefits, present programs could be administered more efficiently in a merged department.

Although veterans affairs would be retained as a distinct division in the proposed new department, Legion Adjutant Robert Wilke of Milwaukee charged today that confidential personal records would be opened to welfare agencies and county veterans service officers would be eliminated.

Neither step is mentioned in the Kellett plan.

Market Dips After Burst

Prices Mixed
In Stocks Early
This Afternoon

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market showed a burst of pre-Christmas enthusiasm then began to slacken off, with prices mixed early this afternoon.

The first-hour trading was the week's heaviest but by noon the volume total was a shade below Thursday when the all-day total ran more than 8.5 billion shares.

Autos advanced at the start as they responded to the unexpected mid-December rise in auto sales. The group was given a further spur by unconfirmed rumors of merger talks between American Motors and Litton Industries.

It looked as if Wall Street were in a hurry to clear the decks prior to the three-day Christmas weekend. Stock markets will be closed on Monday.

Steels Ahead

Steels remained well ahead but the advance by motors began to falter in the afternoon. Nonferrous metals, chemicals and utilities remained generally higher but aerospace issues turned mixed. In the airlines, oils and rails the trend became lower on balance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .2 at 296.5 with industrials off .3, rails off .5 and utilities up .5.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .78 at 800.89.

The biggest block was 222,500 shares of Wilson & Co., unchanged at 61 1/4 after rising 6 1/2 Thursday on news of a tender offer from Ling-Temco-Vought. LTV was up about 3.

GE Loses Fraction

General Electric, down more than 11 points from its high of last week, lost another fraction. Westinghouse Electric dipped more than a point.

Autos advanced in a body at the start but General Motors faltered and was down a fraction in early afternoon. Chrysler and American Motors remained about a point higher. Ford was up a fraction. Litton Industries was a fractional lower.

Jones & Laughlin, up nearly 2, was the best of the major steelmakers. U.S. Steel gained about a point or so.

American Airlines and Boeing slipped a point or so.

Prices were irregularly higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Children Who Will be spending Christmas in St. Elizabeth Hospital were treated to a party Tuesday by the Business Club of Appleton High School West. Some of the presents were examined by Kim Vande Wetering, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Vande Wetering, Kaukauna; Scott De Goey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert De Goey, Combined Locks; and Sister Raphael, supervisor of pediatrics, all in front. In back are Nancy Rach and Linda Piette, two members of the club. Christmas carols and games made the evening even more enjoyable.

God Is With Us

Christians Will Hear Story Of Birth on Christmas Eve

God is with us. The month-long Advent season is over. It is Christmas, the time when the Christian world commemorates the birth of the Holy Child, who, according to the Gospel of St. Matthew, was born to save His people from their sins.

The story of Christmas is as old as the birth itself, known by everyone, beginning with the smallest child who has played one of three adoring wise men in the school play.

Christmas Story

"And she brought forth her firstborn son, wrapped Him in swaddling clothes and laid Him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."

The shepherds, who watched over their flock by night; the angels who praised God, saying, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men"; and the wise men who followed the star of Bethlehem, are all vivid figures on the holiest of the holy days.

Bishop Synod To Meet for Pope in Fall

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI announced today that the Roman Catholic Church's first synod of bishops to help the pontiff govern the church will convene in Rome next Sept. 29.

The Pope told members of the College of Cardinals during their annual pre-Christmas meeting with him that the synod's first session would last until Oct. 24 and further if necessary.

The synod was one of the outstanding progressive reforms to emerge from the Vatican Ecumenical Council, which ended a year ago this month.

In the synod will be bishops from the various national episcopal conferences, representing the world's half-billion Roman Catholics as a consultative council to advise the pontiff on running the church.

Green Bay Defense Took Ball 42 Times Via Foe Turnovers

Interceptions and Fumbles Produce Points on 21 Occasions

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The Packers' defense's outstanding feat during the 14-game league campaign was holding the opposition to 163 points — average of slightly over 11 per trip.

But the defense also did a remarkable job of turning the ball over to the offense.

Willie Davis and Co. obtained the ball 42 times on interceptions or fumbles during the season — an average of three a game.

Better yet, points were produced on exactly half, 21, of those turnovers. The offense took the ball and proceeded to six field goals and nine touchdowns on 15 turnovers and the defense scored direct touchdowns by returning six interceptions.

One-Third of Total

Thps, the defense figured in 15 touchdowns and six field goals — a total of 130 points or more than one-third of the Packers' offensive total of 335. And you can add a 16th TD — on Donny Anderson's 77-yard punt return against the Falcons.

The six TDs on interceptions tied a league record set by the Browns in 1960. Bob Jeter had two and Lee Roy Caffey, Willie Wood, Herb Adderley and Doug Hart one each.

Green Bay's next foe, the Cowboys, produced 11 fewer turnovers, 31, on 14 fumbles recovered and 17 interceptions.

Tom Landry, the onetime Giant defensive star, is now in his seventh year as coach of the Cowboys, who were born in 1960. He said he felt he had a contender right from the start of this season, explaining:

"That's the important thing to shoot for — to get into position to contend. If you get that, then with some breaks you can win. But I've been in the Eastern Division since 1950 and I haven't seen anybody win but New York and Cleveland, other than Philadelphia that one year."

Of the four semi-finalists for the world's professional football championship, the Packers have the best win-loss percentage, .857 on 12-2. Kansas City is next with .846 on 11-2-1 and Dallas is third with .769 on 10-3-1. Buffalo, which split with Kansas City, has .692 on 9-4-1.

Packers Set Drill Before Holiday Rest

GREEN BAY (AP) — The Green Bay Packers have a light workout set for today knocking off for Christmas.

The team is scheduled to leave Monday for Tulsa, Okla., where it will undergo final polishing before meeting the Cowboys at Dallas on Jan. 1 for the National Football League Championship.

The Packers, defending NFL titlist, staged a no contact outdoor practice in 15 degree weather Thursday.

Quarterback Bart Starr, who missed the regular season's finale at Los Angeles Sunday because of earlier rib injuries, was throwing with apparent ease and guard Fuzzy Thurston, who injured an ankle some weeks ago, was running well.

'Out-of-Town' Record Set Bays to Have Strong 'Voice' in Cotton Bowl

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The Packers will have something akin to a million dollar backing in Dallas Jan. 1.

Voice-wise, the backing will total 3,500 — the largest crowd ever to follow Green Bay to a championship game.

It will be a double-barreled deal since New Year's Eve is also involved — not to mention the Cotton Bowl game between SMU and Georgia Dec. 31.

The Packers have been allotted 3,500 tickets and Tom Miller, assistant to Vince Lombardi, said Thursday, "They're all sold."

Most of the tickets went to sponsors of plane and train specials out of Green Bay, Milwaukee and Marinette. Hundreds of others are going on their own.

This is the third out-of-town championship for the Packers in seven years. The first was in Philadelphia in 1960, and approximately 500 fans followed the Packers. The next was in New York in 1962, and the following reached 800.

Will be Outnumbered

The huge Wisconsin throng figures to raise a lot of noise on under Cotton Bowl options.

Dallas and KC are the highest scoring teams, with 445 and 448 points, respectively. Buffalo counted 358, Green Bay 335. The Packers have allowed the fewest points by far — 163, compared to 239 for Dallas, 255 for Buffalo and 276 for KC.

Terry Nofsinger, the No. 2 Cardinal quarterback, says "the most outstanding thing about Dallas is the speed they've got. But they're also a very intelligent club. They make few mistakes."

The Packers have five native Texans, who will find little friendship in the Cotton Bowl. They are Forrest Gregg, Big Springs, Tex.; Lee Roy Caffey, Thorndale; Tommy Crutcher, McKinney; Donny Anderson, Stinnett; and Doug Hart, a Green Bay transplant who was born in Handley, Tex.

East and West Squads Visit Shriners Hospital Before Benefit Game

By RON BERGMAN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — No block or tackle on the Kezar Stadium football field Dec. 31 can match the viciousness of the blows nature has inflicted on crippled children for whom the East-West game is played.

The players and coaches saw this for themselves Thursday.

They visited the San Francisco Shriners Hospital for which the game has raised more than $5 million in 41 years.

After an apprehensive beginning that lasted only momentarily, everyone began to smile.

"I see you have an Oregon State banner up there," Jim Wilkins, a 225-pound guard from OSU, said to 3-year-old Lester.

"That's so Santa can come and see how nice it is," said Lester.

Each player was assigned a child. It didn't take long to get warmly acquainted.

Every player got a wallet with his patient's picture inside. The players gave presents, too. All-America linebacker Jim Lynch of Notre Dame gave a balloon to smiling Bennie, 9. She took it with her right hand which had only a thumb and forefinger.

Lynch, who had to turn away for a few seconds, will have Bonnie as his incentive a week from Saturday.

Players in the San Francisco Shrine game not only give up their holidays but are unpaid.

The East got the girl's wing and the West the boys'. But each squad visited both wings where banners with school colors and names flew from every bed.

Some of the kids could get out of their beds with the aid of crutches or braces. Casts covered legs, arms or entire bodies.

The older boys gave West Head Coach John Ralston a cheer. Suzanne, 14, led a spell-out W-E-S-T T-E-A-M.

The visit was over. The older boys able to get into the hall watched through a window as

Wilt Held to 14; 76'ers Nip Warriors by 2

Nate Thurmond, Wilt Chamberlain's understudy when both played for San Francisco, hounded Philadelphia's super star tenaciously but in vain Thursday night. Thurmond may have won the personal contest, but the 76ers won the game.

In the only National Basketball Association action, the Philadelphia 76ers outlasted a dogged Warrior squad and won, 116-114, although Thurmond held Chamberlain to 14 points and out rebounded the Big Dipper.

Philadelphia goes to Los Angeles tonight. St. Louis is at Boston and Detroit at Chicago in other NBA games.

Thurmond played for years in the shadow of Chamberlain's super image. When the Big Dipper was traded by the Warriors to Philadelphia, Thurmond took over as San Francisco's regular center.

Against Chamberlain, the Warrior center allowed only one field goal in six attempts in the first half. In the final quarter, however, Wilt made five of six attempts from the field and ended with 14 points.

Chamberlain had 22 rebounds and eight assists. Thurmond scored nine points, gathered in 25 rebounds and assisted on three goals.

The Warriors started without their leading scorer, Rick Barry, who had a sprained ankle. But with the Warriors down by as much as 19 points, 43-24, in the second period, San Francisco sent Barry in with a tightly taped ankle.

He sparked a Warrior surge that brought them to a 53-53 tie 24 seconds before the halftime gun. Barry and Jeff Mullins hit consistently from the outside to close the gap.

Mullins made a clean steal of the ball with 47 seconds remaining in the game and put the Warriors to within two points at 115-113 with a layup. Bill Cunningham then hit a foul shot for the 76ers and Mullins dropped in a one-pointer.

Hal Greer then threw the ball away and the Warriors brought it in, passing to Barry who muffed the throw. Thurmond recovered and took a desperate hook shot, but it fell short. Chuck Walker with 24 points and Greer with 22 led the 76ers. Barry hit 30 points to lead all scorers.

Wyoming, Florida State Will Clash

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The Florida State and Wyoming Sun Bowl football teams won't spend Christmas eve envisioning sugar plums if their coaches have any say.

Florida State Coach Bill Peterson envisions good team attitude and the Seminoles' scoring potency. Wyoming Coach Lloyd Eaton savors fourth-quarter offensive lightning and a staunch defense.

The two coaches were to send their teams through light practice sessions today for the 32nd annual Sun Bowl classic Saturday starting at 4 p.m., EST.

"It's going to take everybody on the field to play those tomahawks," Peterson said, speaking figuratively of the Cowboy and Indian battle.

New Teams Seek To End Viking and Knight Domination

Carthage, North Park Will Perform Here Next Week

Two new foes will try to upset the Lawrence University and St. Norbert domination of the Lawrence Holiday Basketball Tournament. Carthage College, of Kenosha, and North Park College (Ill.) will provide the opposition.

The Classic will get underway next Thursday, with St. Norbert meeting Carthage and Lawrence facing North Park.

The two losers will meet Friday, Dec. 30, for consolation honors. The first-night winners clash for the title.

In the previous two meets, Lawrence and St. Norbert have always won first-round games. In the 1964 tournament, St. Norbert went on to take the title while last year, Lawrence came through to win the championship.

Milton and Northland colleges provided the opposition in the first two tournaments.

Lawrence holds the record for having scored the most points in any one game, 106 against Northland last year.

Lawrence and Northland also set a combined point total mark in the 196-76 game.

The top individual scoring performance was the 29 markers scored by Bob Hammen, of Northland, against Milton in the consolation game last year.

There are a lot of chiefs and mighty few Indians on the Lawrence team this year.

Of the 15-man squad, nine were named to all-conference honors during their high school careers, seven were captains of their respective squads and four were elected most valuable basketball player.

All-conference men on the list are: Mike Andrews, Kaukauna, Mid-Eastern conference; Brian Bock, Appleton, Fox River Valley conference; Don Brooke, Marengo, Ill., Shark conference; Brad Childs, Golden, Colo., two

Bills' Halfback Beats Out Mike Garrett

Pick Burnett Top AFL Rookie

My MIKE RATHER
NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Burnett of the Buffalo Bills, the oldest of three football-playing brothers, gave them a target to shoot at today when he was named Rookie of the Year in the American Football League by The Associated Press.

The 23-year-old halfback won the crown in a tight battle, polling 15 votes to nine for Mike Garrett of the Kansas City Chiefs from the three-man committees of sports writers and sportscaster in the nine league cities.

Garrett, the Heisman Trophy winner when he was at Southern California, proved a flashier performer than Burnett, ripping off 801 yards, including a 77-yard romp that was the longest from scrimmage in the AFL this season.

Steady Performance

But Burnett undoubtedly impressed the voters with his steady performances for the Bills as he gained 766 yards, scored four touchdowns and added running power to the Buffalo attack.

Running power was what Coach Joe Collier was looking for at training camp, but he admittedly did not expect it to come from Burnett so soon.

"Bobby Burnett is a good football player," Harvey Johnson, the Bills' talent scout, told Collier. "But he's probably a year away."

Johnson explained his reasoning. "The reasons we thought he was a year away is that he played tailback in the Arkansas system and you don't get the type of blocking experience needed for our offense," Johnson pointed out.

"He was a perfect learner," Collier explained. "He picked up the blocking far faster than we had expected. And he smells that end zone."

Burnett had no idea he was going to be Buffalo's starting halfback. But he did have his sights set on showing brother Tommy, drafted by the New York Jets, and brother Billy, a freshman at Arkansas, a thing or two.

Bruins Struggle but Beat Colorado State, For Fourth Victory

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Low Alcindor played his poorest game, but college basketball's sophomore phenomenon still threw in 34 points to lead top-ranked UCLA to an 84-74 victory over Colorado State University.

Down 41-34 at halftime, the CSU Rams from Fort Collins tied the score at 64-64 before Alcindor spoiled their chance Thursday night of going into the record books as the first college team to beat UCLA and their 7-foot-11% superstar.

Alcindor and Lynn Shackelford hit for four straight field goals to break the tie with less than five minutes left and delight a crowd of 12,487 at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles.

"I played poorly, especially on defense," Alcindor said. "I just wasn't alert as much as I should have been on defense. I don't feel I'm progressing as fast as I would like to defensively. They gave me some trouble with their size and rebounding."

"It was probably Alcindor's poorest game so far this year, over-all," commented Johnny Wooden, the UCLA coach, after his 500th game as a college mentor.

"We didn't move the ball as well as we should have, but that may have been due to our lay-off. I think the best thing we did was to come back in the second half after they had tied us. That always matures a team."

It was the fourth in a row for the unbeaten Bruins, who hadn't played since they routed Duke Dec. 10. Tonight Notre Dame moves into Pauley Pavilion to try to upset the Bruins.

Alcindor got his 34 points on 13 field goals and eight of 13 free throws. Big 6-7 Sonny Bustion and 6-8 Bob Rule topped the Rams with 17 and 12 points, respectively.

Cincy, Wildcats Win

Seventh-ranked Cincinnati, the only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, had to go overtime to edge Texas Christian 89-88.

Kentucky trounced Oregon State 96-66 and Kansas State humbled Penn State 83-59 in the first round of the UK Invitational while in other games New Orleans Loyola nipped Washington 88-87, Rutgers downed Pitt 87-68, Michigan defeated Ohio Univ. 86-80 and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia routed Jacksonville Univ. 81-63. Oregon beat Hawaii 73-64 in Honolulu.

Two Big Ten teams, Minnesota and Indiana, compete in the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. That starts Tuesday, as does the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia in which fifth-ranked Michigan State (3-1) appears as a Big Ten power.

Monday, Northwestern's high-scoring Wildcats take a 3-2 record into New York's Holiday Festival. Purdue (5-1) plays in the Kodak City Classic at Rochester, N.Y., Wednesday and Thursday.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said, "The blackout of the home city in the championship game will not be lifted. This is done because those who buy tickets to the game do so in the belief that they will not be able to see the game otherwise."

J. R. Smith, game management supervisor, listed 67,300 mature bucks among the 109,973 deer killed.

"Although our total kill was greater in the any-deer and antlerless seasons of 1943, 1949, 1950 and 1951, the 1966 season must be considered our best on record," Smith said.

"The results point to a high and healthy statewide deer population, and to good cropping by sportsmen," he added.

Hunters with regular license and tag took 69,306 animals, mostly bucks, while 40,667 were taken under the variable quota permit. It was estimated that an additional 6,000 deer will be taken during the archery season ending Dec. 31.

Smith said deer were harvested where they needed to be thinned out.

Jackson County led in the harvesting total with 5,473 animals, including 3,088 bucks. Waupaca was second with 4,717, of which 2,840 were bucks. Marinette County had the second highest buck harvest with 2,993.

Other county totals included Bayfield, 4,492; Marinette, 4,266; Douglas, 4,017; Oneida, 3,872; Wood, 3,708; Burnett, 3,634; Price, 3,632; and Waushara, 3,387. The report noted that Waupaca and Waushara counties have moved up in recent years in the increasing deer herd and harvest categories.

Wyoming Players Get Lost, Report to Wrong Work-Out

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Football practice sessions for Saturday's Sun Bowl game became so secretive Thursday that two Wyoming players got lost.

And Wyoming Gov. Clifford Hansen and Gov.-elect Stan Hathaway, both Republicans, were run out of the Florida State workout after jestingly being accused as "football spies" by a young coach.

"It was all kinda comical," commented Dave Lantz, graduate assistant at FSU, after he had asked Hansen, Hathaway, University of Wyoming President Dr. John King and two others to leave the practice.

But it wasn't nearly as comical for Wyoming gridders Glen Lybarger, offensive tackle, and Tom Gottburg, defensive end.

They were following the Wyoming team bus in a private car driven by a professional football scout. The car lost the bus at a stop light. The two players and the scout drove for nearly an hour trying to find the high school field where the Wyoming team practiced.

They never did find it, and neither did Hansen and Hathaway.

"We went to five different fields," Hathaway said. "Dr. King didn't know where they were. Their secret practice was very well concealed."

When they showed up at the FSU workout, Lantz and another

NBA Stiffens Penalty on Foul Against Non-Possessor

NEW YORK (AP)—The rules committee which came over the growing trend in league play to foul players not in possession of the ball, the National Basketball Association decided Thursday to stiffen the penalty for such violations.

Instead of just getting one free throw, the offended team now will get the shot on a technical foul and then will get possession of the ball in midcourt whether the shot is made or not.

The rule will go into effect Tuesday, Dec. 27, the NBA announced.

For the past month, teams have increasingly fouled each other foul shooters as will Chamberlain, Bill Russell, Walt Bellamy and Johnny Green when an almost certain field goal was to be made by one of their teammates.

The NBA's Board of Governors decided to remedy the rule situation (sixth foul) a penalty on this at its meeting in Chicago last night and left it up to free throw."

"The player committing the foul shall be charged with a personal foul. It also is to be charged as a team foul. After the foul shot is attempted, the fouled team puts the ball in play from a point out of bounds at center court, should the offense be in the penalty situation (sixth foul) a penalty on this at its meeting in Chicago last night and left it up to free throw."

Recreation Outline Stresses Parks for Southeastern Area

Most of State's Public Lands In Areas of Low Population

MADISON (AP)—A $100 million program to improve outdoor recreation in Wisconsin was outlined Thursday with emphasis on more parklands for the southeastern urban areas.

The long-range planning report said Wisconsin has most of its public lands where the people aren't — in the north.

It suggested that perhaps some of the northern state forests might be sold to raise money to buy more parks to serve the southern cities.

The study proposed establishment of a Baraboo range state forest in Sauk County and called for a $14 million expansion of the Kettle Moraine State Forest near Plymouth. It backed current plans to preserve the Wolf River north of Keshena and the Apostle Islands off Ashland.

The Department of Resource Development prepared the report covering recreation needs in Wisconsin through the end of the century.

Poor Situation "The present pattern of public land ownership, with most of the land holdings in northern Wisconsin, is poorly situated to meet the needs of the populous southeast and east-central region," the report said.

It suggested that perhaps the policy of continuing to hold large blocks of forest in public ownership should be re-examined.

In addition, the report said extensive areas of forests have little special recreation value and suggested studying the possibility the lands might be sold or exchanged for high quality sites elsewhere.

The plan, outlining nearly $100 million in possible state spending for more lands in the rest of the century, contained a suggestion that $63 million be used for general park purchases and development. Another $10 million was recommended for fish and game projects and $5 million was suggested for more flowages and lakes.

Delivered to Knowles

The report, more than five years in preparation, was delivered to Gov. Warren P. Knowles in his capacity as chairman of the State Recreation Committee.

Possible park sites included expansion of Wyalusing State Park on the Mississippi near Prairie du Chien and areas on the Castle Rock and Petenwell flowages on the Wisconsin River near Necedah.

High quality sites marked in northern Wisconsin included Lake Chippewa near Hayward, Lake Koshong near Minocqua, a 25-mile stretch of the St. Croix River downstream from Solon Springs and the Caldron Falls and High Falls reservoirs on the Peshtigo River in Marinette County.

Possible Sites

In the same category were possible sites in the Long Lake area north of Bloomer, on the Eau Claire River east of Eau Claire, on the Big Eau Pleine reservoir near Mosinee and in the Yellow Lake section of Burnett County.

U. S. Might be Buying Goods From Peking

Investigators Checking Possible Hidden Ownership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are taking a close look at charges that U.S. military contractors have purchased supplies for their Vietnam operations from Hong Kong firms controlled by Communist China.

The inquiry could lead to public hearings after Congress reconvenes Jan. 10.

In any event, a spokesman said Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, will follow it up, either personally or through his Senate subcommittee on foreign aid expenditures.

That panel has produced during the past nine months a series of questions about Red Chinese goods and U.S. military contractors.

London Report

The latest inquiry was produced by an account in the Sunday London Observer, which reported the United States bought $1 million worth of steel from Red China for construction of bases in Vietnam.

The Pentagon said Monday it had no information to substantiate that story, and no indication that any U.S. government procurement had come from Red China.

Joseph Lippman, the subcommittee's staff director, said his investigators asked the Pentagon Wednesday to fully investigate the Observer account.

Look Trying to Keep Germans From Publishing Original Book Version

NEW YORK (AP) — An official of Look magazine said today he plans to go to West Germany to try to dissuade the magazine Stern from publishing the original version of Look's serialization of the book, "The Death of a President."

It also was announced that Mrs. John F. Kennedy, one of the principals in the book controversy, and her children, Caroline and John Jr., would leave Monday for a vacation in Antigua in the British West Indies. They plan to return Jan. 5.

Mrs. Kennedy's planned departure is one day before a scheduled hearing on her court suit against William Manchester, author of the book, and Harper & Row, the publishers, seeking to block publication of the book in its present form.

Case Settled

Mrs. Kennedy reached an out-of-court settlement with Look Wednesday night after the magazine agreed to make requested deletions and modifications of passages she considered too personal. Sections of the serialization reportedly unfavorable to President Johnson will remain. The four-part Look series begins in the issue of Jan. 10.

Negotiations are continuing with Harper & Row in an effort to reach a similar agreement. The publishing firm plans to issue the 300,000-word book next April.

Manchester and Harper & Row were scheduled to file dispute with Mrs. Kennedy would be settled out of court.

The Look official, Joseph Wurzel, the magazine's syndicate manager, said he did not know exactly when he would be going to West Germany. He said the matter was on the agenda of Look executives today.

Stern Undeterred By Look Appeal

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Stern magazine said today it is sticking to its plans to publish the original serialization of "The Death of a President," despite a protest from Look magazine.

Look, which sold the German magazine rights to the serial, has agreed to cuts and changes requested by Mrs. John F. Kennedy. After Stern announced it would use the original text, Look editors said every attempt would be made to have the approved version used in Germany too.

The director, Thomas Keith, 53, of Siren, was reported in fair condition at a Minneapolis hospital.

Sheriff Lloyd Erickson said Keith and Jackson were in Keith's office in Webster when an argument developed and Keith's right leg was shattered above the knee.

Erickson said he and a deputy arrested Jackson in a wooded area near Jackson's farm. Arraigned at Grantsburg before County Judge Harry Gunderson, Jackson was held in the county jail in lieu of $15,000 bond with preliminary hearing set for Dec. 30.

Erickson said he did not know what the men were arguing about.

Father Wins Fight to Let Child Celebrate Christmas

A judge, overruling the 8-year-old girl's mother, decided

Thursday that Laurinda may spend Christmas afternoon with her father.

The mother, a Jehovah's Witness, considers the traditional celebration of Christmas Day a pagan ritual. Laurinda's father is a Methodist. The parents were divorced and have remarried.

"I think it will add a measure of happiness to her and I don't believe that it will deprive the child of anything," state Supreme Court Justice David L. Glickman said in handing down his decision.

Power Firm, Union Agree To Negotiate

Federal Mediators Called in to Settle Milwaukee Dispute

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Talks were scheduled to resume today between the striking operating engineers union and the Wisconsin Electric Power Co.

The union, on strike at the utility's five plants since Monday, agreed Thursday to resume negotiations with the help of federal mediators and to refrain from blocking construction workers from entering two plants at Oak Creek and Port Washington.

Agreement to be back at the bargaining table for the first time since the strike began was reached after Federal Judge Robert T. Hinkle said he would wait until next Thursday to hear the utility's request for an order directing the employees to go back to work.

Second Injunction

The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board in Milwaukee threatened to seek a second court injunction after finding the union guilty of illegal picketing at gates designated exclusively for construction workers at two of the plants.

George Squillacote, NLRB regional director, said a staff attorney will seek authority today from Washington to seek an injunction based on evidence of mass picketing at plant entrances.

Morris Slavney, chairman of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, said his agency will hold a hearing Jan. 4 on the utility's complaint of mass picketing and contract violation if the issues aren't settled sooner by the federal agencies.

Advance Notice

Judge Tahan gave the union until Wednesday to answer the company's charge that it struck 27 days before it was free to such action under an advance notice provision in a contract that expired last Friday.

It was announced that picketing will be halted from noon Saturday until midnight Sunday to allow strikers and others to go home for the Christmas week end.

Supervisory employees have stayed in the company plants to keep operations running. The company provides electrical power to a large part of eastern Wisconsin and parts of Upper Michigan.

U.S. to Send Grain To Starving India

Shipment of Wheat, Sorghum Spurred by Soviet Presentation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, spurred partly by a related Soviet action, has agreed to send hungry India 900,000 tons of wheat and sorghum for the winter.

A U.S. official called the allocation "interim" and said the administration would consult with Congress about future grain shipments.

The Soviet Union announced Thursday prior to the U.S. agreement, that it would donate 200,000 tons of wheat immediately to drought-stricken areas of India.

One official said the United States had been waiting for other countries, including the Soviet Union, to join the hunger fight. He said the Soviet announcement quickened the U.S. decision.

Prevent Starvation

The grain, coupled with other supplies assured from Canada and Australia, "should prevent any starvation" into March, said the official. It assures India of one million tons of imported grain in both January and February.

India's own winter wheat crop comes to harvest in March and April.

Prospects for future U.S. shipments brightened from the standpoint of grain availability when the Agriculture Department released figures Thursday indicating a record wheat crop for this country next year. Winter wheat plantings are up 26 per cent from last year.

Food for Peace

The government has encouraged more plantings after foreign demands helped cut the U.S. wheat stockpile this year.

The grain — half wheat, half sorghum — was authorized under the Food for Peace program and will be paid for by India with its own currency.

The United States had been holding up grain allocations to India while it determined whether India appeared to be making sufficient efforts to meet its food crisis domestically.

Couple Enjoying Snowy Christmas After African Stint

MADISON (AP) — Ron and Lynn Grosz of Sheboygan, graduate students at the University of Wisconsin, are spending their first Christmas in three years amid ice and snow after 30 months as teachers with the peace Corps in Liberia.

Both are working on advanced degrees that will help them return to Africa.

During their first Christmas, in the hot, western African nation "the children of the village still regarded us as curiosities," Lynn said. "There was always a small group eyeing me through the windows as I had improvised some Christmas decorations."

But, she said, it was different the following Christmas when the couple served a dinner of roast beef and exchanged gifts with the villagers, who presented elephant tusks and pieces of native cloth as gifts.

"We found an imitation tree and French lights which we could light up, because by this time we had a generator," she said.

Skiers, Resort Owners Happy Over Prospect Of 'White' Holidays

BY PETE GENIESSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Snowflakes—zillions of them—were fluttering from the skies onto the nobs and knolls along U.S. 2 this week and it looks like it's ging to be white Christmas and a very prosperous New Year for a number of ski resort operators.

The yuletide holidays are the schuss-boomiest times of the year for the skiers—and the snow capitalists.

For the first time this season the "excellent skiing conditions" flags are flying. And the resort operators in the snow belt can heave a sigh of relief.

Barring a severe thaw between now and New Year's Day, invading snow bunnies and sitzmarkers will inject more than $1 million into the snow capitals along U.S. 2 in Upper Michigan. Half of this amount will go to the Bessemer-Ironwood-Hurley sector. And another large chunk of green will stay near Cable-Hayward when the holiday spirits drain.

More than a foot of fluff fell on the slopes at Indianhead, Powderhorn and White Cap this week and another six inches bolstered the base at Mt. Telemark. Excellent skiing is the forecast.

Other resorts haven't been so fortunate. Pine Mountain, Brule, the Porkies, Cliff's Ridge, Nor Ski in Door County and Rib Mountain near Wausau are all scrambling to groom their slopes for the big week. A few inches of new snow fell on the areas this week but the conditions only range from fair to good.

There's still time to get in some last minute Christmas shopping for the gelandsprungers. Word has it the gals want to be insulated by candy-striped long-Janes, or maybe those of a snow-flake pattern. The western influence may make its mark in the new denim stretch pants.

The recent snow fall in the Fox Cities brought smiles to the faces of ski shop managers who report sales of metal skis far exceeding last year's record. The white blanket and nippy air might also have been a reason one store sold out its entire stock of wine skins.

Springfield's Hockey Strike Has Ended

Several Regulars Benched in Wake Of Team Revolt

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Springfield Indians return to American Hockey League action in a meeting with Providence tonight with several regulars benched in the wake of an abortive week-long revolt against owner Eddie Shore.

Shore, who went searching for talent in the United States and Canada after the Indians walked out Monday, said that five newcomers from the Central League would dress for the game with the Reds.

He said the remainder of the team will be "augmented with some of the present players."

Shore, a 64-year-old pro in dealing with defiant players, refused to give ground in pro hockey's first full-scale player rebellion since 1925.

He rejected demands that he reinstate suspended defensemen Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Aradio and veteran forward Brian Kilrea, and insisted that the team's other 19 players honor contracts.

The 19 threatened to continue the walkout until their four teammates were reinstated, but reluctantly agreed to return on the advice of special counsel, Alan Eagleson, a Toronto attorney.

Shore had suspended the four players for what he called "indifferent play."

Wilt Top Pick for East All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson lead a list of eight players selected today to play for the Eastern Division in the 17th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game in San Francisco's Cow Palace Jan. 10.

Chamberlain, of Philadelphia, was the unanimous choice at center of the 85 writers and broadcasters who voted for the team. Robertson, of Cincinnati, received 84 votes at guard.

Others named were Willis Reed of New York, Bailey Howell of Boston and Jerry Lucas of Cincinnati, forward, Bill Russell, of Boston center, and Hal Greer of Philadelphia and John Havlicek of Boston, guards.

The Western Division team will be announced Sunday.

"Their passing attack will keep us honest," he said. "If we're not up, we'll get defeated."

Wyoming chalked up a 9-1 season record, mostly on a rugged defense which allowed only 69 points.

Of the 327 points scored by the Cowboy offense, 116 of them came in the fourth quarter.

Florida State, 6-4, gave up 187 points, scoring 254 points. Quarterback Gary Payne fired eight touchdown passes, completed 125 of 233 pass attempts and had 1,590 yards through the air. Fullback Jim Mankins and Bill Moreman add rushing power.

Wyoming quarterback Rick Egloff passed for 1,190 yards and 13 touchdowns. Jim Kuick, Dave Hampton and Egloff combined for another 1,230 yards rushing.

Peterson and Eaton held practices Thursday shut off to the public. Wyoming's practice today was to be in game uniforms while Florida State was to work out in sweat clothes at its motel.

This Christmas Being Enjoyed With Restraint

Grandparents Still Remember Grim Holidays of 1930s

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This Christmas Day will be one of abundance, materially speaking, but for many Americans it will be enjoyed with restraint rather than delight, with a hopeful peak into the future and a shuddering memory of the past.

Those who fit this description best may be grandparents now, perhaps receiving Social Security payments. It was they who were raising families in the midst of the great depression of the 1930s.

The Christmas season 30 years ago nevertheless was one of the best of that depressing decade. The economy was rising out of an economic mudhole and a lot of people were hoping again.

Bonuses to Veterans
Postmen had carried bonuses in brown envelopes to three million war veterans during mid-year and by Christmas three-quarters of the $1.7 billion was spent.

Late in the year General Motors increased wages five cents an hour and threw in a $10-million bonus for about 200,000 employees; the outlook for automobiles was very good.

The Works Progress Administration was cutting back from its peak of three million workers early in the year because now more professional, skilled and unskilled workers were getting their old jobs back again or finding new ones.

Unemployment was falling from the horribly high figure of 25 per cent of the labor force in 1933. Stock prices were rising.

Depression Returned
It was an illusion, of course, and when the depression returned businessmen and workers despaired even more. General Motors officials were shocked. The unemployment rate rose again to nearly 20 per cent.

For those who remember the WPA, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the breadlines, the dust bowls, the ragged men, the sit-down strikes and the marches of broken people, Christmas this year comes with a fierce memory.

Without making any judgment, if possible, on the legacy of the 1930s, we can find around us this Christmas visible results of the ferment and searching of that decade.

Among these is better understanding of the economy, perhaps better management of it, too. Economic management has become a delicate art in which business and government sometimes cooperate. We now have nearly maximum production and consumption — and unemployment is down to 4 per cent or less.

Social Security
Security is another. At this time 30 years ago a tax of one per cent on some payrolls was starting to build the initial Social Security funds that are now being paid to 22 million persons.

Another is equality. Out of the mutual miseries of the 30s came an appreciation of opposites.

Just 30 years ago the federal courts asserted that neither the states nor the government had authority to fix wages for women workers. The question was being examined. Now we have equality of sexes and minimum wages.

In the 30s this nation had more domestic problems than it could handle. And internationally, the Germans were smashing treaties and moving their armies, the Spanish were in civil war, Italy and Ethiopia were fighting. Russians were being purged and the Far East was in ferment.

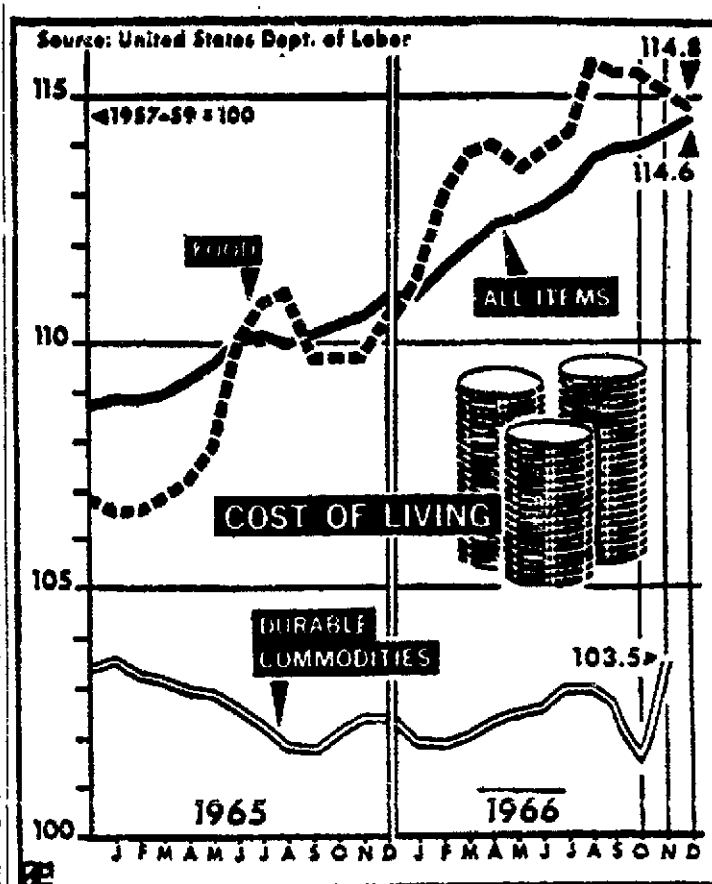

These problems can be matched today and, by most measures, even surpassed. Hopefully, though, the economy

3-Year Term Seen as Barrier for U.S. Trade

MOSCOW (AP) — The sentencing of a young American to three years in a Soviet labor camp is expected in Moscow to hurt chances for U.S.-Soviet trade increases, something the Soviets want.

Buel Ray Wortham, 25, of North Little Rock, Ark., was sentenced Wednesday in Lenin-grad for stealing an antique statue of a bear from a Lenin-grad hotel and changing about $75 for black market rubles. He plans to appeal.

Wortham's congressman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., filed an affidavit to the court, testifying to Wortham's good character. Mills is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and in a key position

The Price of Food Declined in November, but higher costs of most other consumer items sent prices up by one-tenth of 1 per cent, the Labor Department in Washington said Thursday. Slick Spots to Greet Yule Travelers on State's Roads

Holiday travelers will find slippery spots on highways in northeastern Wisconsin where light snow is falling today. But, major highways and interstate routes throughout the rest of the state were listed in good winter driving conditions.

Roads are expected to stay clear through Wednesday. If your Christmas is white, it will depend on the snow now in your yard. The five-day forecast predicts precipitation of less than one-tenth of an inch.

Skies will be clear, and stars instead of snow will fill the sky on Christmas Eve.

Ice-skaters are in luck, because temperatures Saturday through Wednesday are expected to average about 5 degrees below normal. Wisconsin normal highs are 20 to 26 in the northwest and 25 to 31 in the southeast. Normal lows are 2 to 11 northwest and 10 to 15 southeast.

Dr. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Seventeen years ago my daughter visited Florida and got a rash all over her. Since then each summer if she is in the sun her face and arms break out so much that she is compelled to stay indoors. Can you suggest anything? — H. W.

Yes, although nothing of a home remedy nature.

This time of year most of us are longing for next summer. Others dread it. Sunshine does different things to different people.

Some skin diseases are benefited by sun, psoriasis, acne and pityriasis to name a few. Yet the sun is poison for others.

Quite aside from sunburn, some people develop an allergy to sunlight, and often break out with hives as a result. In others, a toxic reaction occurs in the cells due to the rays.

Treatment varies considerably from one case to another, and the patient should follow the advice of a skin specialist. In any event, most of the medications which are genuinely effective are prescription drugs.

In the allergic type, antihistamines may help. In the other type of sensitivity, drugs used to combat malaria have proved to be more responsive to human needs. Thankful that the 30s are behind them, many people this year are thankful also for its legacy.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 21, is a track star but has trouble with leg cramps so I suggested that he take calcium capsules and it seems to help. (He does not drink milk.)

Now my husband says he does not need the capsules and that if he continues to take them he will have a heart attack by the time he is 30. What is your answer? — Mrs. F. M.

Neither calcium nor track work will contribute to heart disease later on. Heart attacks are from other factors: Heredity, condition of the arteries, obesity, diabetes, etc.

Why not suggest that your husband leave it to your doctor as to whether the young man should keep on taking calcium?

Dear Dr. Molner: My niece is only 18 but has a huge bust, size 46 to 48, but otherwise is nicely shaped. What can be done for her? She is 5 feet 6 and weighs 130. This situation has made her very unhappy and shy. — Mrs. S. R.

Her weight is about average for her height and it quite understandable that her bust size would create a psychological problem.

Plastic surgery may be able to correct the situation to some extent, and I suggest that she discuss it with her doctor who can refer her to a suitable specialist.

"Tips On How To Stop Smoking," by Dr. Molner, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of the booklet, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper, enclosing with your request 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Copyright, 1966)

World Grateful China Not a Nuclear Power

Much of Rest of 'Progress' Product Only of Necessity

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — What has the world got to be most grateful about this Christmas? Probably the fact that Red China is not yet a full-scale nuclear power with a complete missile delivery system. It's still a few years away from that.

But when Red China gets it, the anguish may begin.

Otherwise, this Christmas is not essentially different from those in recent years.

Much that passes for progress is the product of necessity, like the freeing of African nations whose old colonial masters in Europe didn't have the strength to hold them any longer.

And the Africans, who may have learned a lesson from the stupidities of their one-time white masters, have quarreled among themselves, just like the Europeans.

Stopped By Poverty
This country has the genius for solving all the intricacies in sending men into space, and eventually to the moon, but seems flummoxed by the problem of the nation's vast pools of poverty.

It's been more than 12 years since the Supreme Court ruled that segregation by its very nature is unconstitutional. There has been some progress in civil rights since then. Some peaks have been reached.

But the racial problem also has been mixed with some theatricals and riots and at the moment the edge seems to be off it. It is unlikely Congress will pass another civil rights bill next year.

Negro violence is not going to be the answer. That seems clear, now the country waits to see what direction the Negro effort for civil rights, which justly should be theirs, will take.

And in Vietnam the United States is in just as much of a box this Christmas as it was last Christmas, if not worse.

President Johnson over the years has made speeches about the American reason for being in Vietnam, explaining at one time or another our concern for democracy and the right of the South Vietnamese to choose their own government and so on.

But throughout everything he has said, although it may have been overlooked, is this basic reason he gave: To prevent communism from taking over all Southeast Asia because that would affect the United States.

In short, the United States has a basic reason of self-interest for being in the war. But discontent with the war is piling up at home. This means pressure on Johnson to get it over with.

Failure to get it over will affect his chances for re-election in 1968, if he runs again.

But — if the United States is in a helter-skelter rush to end the war without making sure the Communists can't thereafter take over South Vietnam, then all the fighting and all the lives lost will have been in vain.

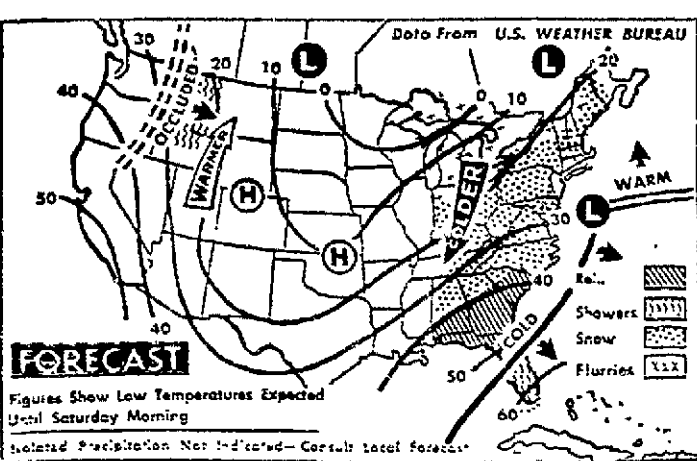

And this is something Johnson will have to consider before any peace is agreed. A Communist coup after a peace settlement would be more disastrous than a prolonged war.

So not much has changed as Christmas comes. But this has been the story of most Christmases, with small variations, for years now.

Hobart Domestic Club
ROYALTON — The Hobart Domestic Club met at Holiday Inn for its Christmas dinner party. The members exchanged gifts and addressed Christmas cards to be sent to the Waupaca County Hospital.

U. S. Admits Possibility Of Accidental Bombing
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States again has denied Communist charges that it bombed civilian targets in Hanoi — but a spokesman added, "We cannot rule out completely the possibility of accident."

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said all targets during the controversial attacks of Dec. 13-14 "were in military areas outside of the city proper."

But he added: "If, in fact, any of our aircraft caused civilian damage, we regret it."

Price of Bacon Cues Housewife To Praise, Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — As bacon goes, so go housewife cost of living complaints, says a government official.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of labor statistics, called it "the bacon mystique" Thursday as he pondered whether a whopping 10.3 per cent drop in the November cost of bacon would bring glowing letters of sentiment from housewives to the government.

"I am continually bemused by bacon," he told newsmen. "Let the price of bacon go up and the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Peterson (Esther Peterson, official federal watchdog for consumers) get a lot of hate mail."

But when prices of most other items go up, Ross said, there are few complaints.

Speaking Contest Set For Calumet Entries

CHILTON — The Calumet County Soil and Water Conservation District is again sponsoring its annual conservation speaking contest.

Charles Nikolai, county 4-H Club Agent, is co-ordinator of the contest this year. All school administrators earlier this month in the county were advised of the contest. Entries should be sent to Nikolai at the extension office, courthouse, Chilton.

Deadline is Jan. 18. The Hopetful for Pikerama Weather

CHILTON — The annual Calumet 4-H Pikerama on Lake Winnebago is scheduled for early January if ice and weather conditions are good for fishing. Fishermen walking out or using snow mobiles reported ice up to seven inches during the past week.

Cold weather usually arrives before Jan. 1 and ice roads on the lake soon become well marked and traveled. In case of generally poor and unsafe conditions as early last year the Pikerama will again be postponed or cancelled.

Stations will be available for fishermen to purchase contest tickets and weigh in the fish from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Stations will be located at Calumetville, Brothertown, Quinney, Ray Ecker Road, Stockbridge, and Calumet County Park. The contest will run on a Saturday and Sunday.

county contest will be Tuesday night, Jan. 31 either at the courthouse, Chilton, or Hilbert High School. This will be announced definitely in January.

The three county class winners will compete in the area contest in Green Bay on Feb. 6.

Three Divisions

Schools that have more than one contestant in any age group should plan to have their own elimination contest prior to Jan. 18.

There are three age groups in this speaking contest. They are junior division through eighth grade, youth division through high school and adult division for any person 18 or older who is not in high school or college.

Area winners will have their speeches taped and the state winner will be judged from these tapes.

USDA Report for 1966

Corn Leads List of High Valued Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported Wednesday the value of crops produced this year was $22,763 billion or about 1.5 per cent above last year's value.

This meant crop prices this year have averaged slightly above last year because the volume produced this year was down 3 per cent from 1965.

Corn, as usual, topped all other crops in total value at $5.34 billion or $609 million more than last year.

Other high value crops included: hay $2.9 billion; soy beans $2.68 billion; wheat $2.15 billion; tobacco, $1.236 billion; cotton $1.044 billion; and sorghum grain $737 million.

California Leads

As was the case last year, California led all states in the value of its crops. California's total of $2.075 billion compared with $2.088 billion last year.

Other big states in crop values included: Illinois $1.834 billion; Iowa, $1.804 billion; Texas, $1.268 billion; Minnesota, $1.030 billion; and Indiana, $901 million.

The department said the value of fruits and nuts produced this year was $1.648 billion and the value of commercial vegetables was $1,588 billion.

The crop showing the largest dollar decline in value this year was cotton, declining from $2.104 billion last year to $1.045 billion this year. This reduction reflected a cutback in cotton production under a government control program designed to help reduce a surplus left from previous crops.

CCC Loses $2.33 Billion In 4 Months

Agency Claims Commodity Sales, Supports Responsible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corporation reported today it lost $2.33 billion in its farm price support and farm program operations during the four-month period ending Nov. 1.

This compared with $1.44 billion in the like period a year earlier.

The CCC losses reflect the sale of some commodities acquired under price support programs at below cost and the

Fremont Farmer to Test Triplet Idea

FREMONT — Triplet calves born at the Kenneth Hahn farm, route 2, Fremont, will be raised to maturity to either confirm or rebut theory standards of sterility.

Theory has it that all or some of the triplets would not respond to breeding.

Hahn, owner and operator of the farm homesteaded by a federal grant from President Pierce, is not only the first owner of triplet calves in the 107 years the farm has borne the Hahn name.

The farm also has the distinction of owning the first triplet calves born while Darrel Johnson, Weyauwega, has been veterinarian in the Fremont area.

High Producer

Calves from the Holstein mother named Hahn Maid Penny were sired by the Badger Breeder Lavacres Dusty Adam.

The mother during the 305 days milking period produced 15,713 pounds of milk. With an average butterfat test of 4.3 per cent she totaled 676 pounds of butterfat. She is about six years old and is in her fourth calving year.

The two heifer calves weighed about 35 pounds each at birth and the bull calf weighed about 60 pounds.

Each now weighs over 100 pounds. All three calves, although not identical, do bear the same star markings on their foreheads and the same white boots as their mother. Hahn began feeding the trio from a pail the first night.

Hahn and the family on the Nov. 12 birth date decided to try and "buck the theory" by raising the two female calves for breeding purposes.

They have been told that female calves born in multiple birth are supposedly barren. Proving or disproving the theory will be an interesting three-year project.

Uncertainty faces the little bull calf as the decision balances with possible vealing.

making of payments to farmers for complying with the department's control programs for cotton, wheat and feed grains.

These payments have been running considerably higher this year than last, largely because of the increased size of benefits to cotton growers.

Losses sustained by the CCC in financing these programs usually are covered later by Congressional appropriations.

November Report

Outagamie DHIA Has 36-Cow Honor Roll

The November high cow report from the Outagamie Central Dairy Herd Improvement Association Cooperative listed the following leaders for the four age classes:

In the five-year-old and older class a Holstein in the Voight Brothers herd, route 2, Shiocton, had the top production record with 21,574 pounds of milk and 763 pounds of butterfat.

The four-year-old group was lead by a Holstein in the Eugene Roepke herd, route 2, Seymour, with 16,359 pounds of milk and 615 pounds of butterfat.

Krahn Herd

A three-year-old in Marvin Krahn herd, route 1, Seymour was the leader, with 18,586 pounds of milk and 733 pounds of butterfat.

Qualifying for the top spot in the two-year-old group was a Holstein in the Sams Brothers herd, route 2, Hortonville, with 13,086 pounds of milk and 535 pounds of butterfat.

A total of 36 cows had production records in 305 days or less to qualify for the November honor roll, according to Elwyn Staley, association manager.

Dairymen to Tour Calumet Guernsey Breeders From 5 Counties Expected Tuesday

CHILTON — Guernsey breeders from five counties will tour the Ariens plant at Brillion on Tuesday to see how manufacturers produce for the markets. Four-H club members and parents will be on hand for the tour of parts of the huge plant.

SHERWOOD — Spirit of giving prevailed at Sherwood Wide Awake 4-H Club's Christmas Party last week.

Members donated $24 to the fund drive for Calumet County's Association for Retarded Children. They also gave 20 pounds of candy to the Wisconsin

The children make the donations instead of exchanging gifts.

Junior leaders from the local club are assisting with the dance sponsored by the Junior Leaders Association tonight at Chilton High School. A club skating party is planned in January.

Calumet Students Planning for Vacation Dance

CHILTON — High school students from all Calumet County schools will meet Friday evening, Dec. 30, for their annual vacation dance at the old high school gym here. The theme "Crystal Fantasy" will be carried out in decorations including ice statues.

Chilton Future Farmers of America chapter members have pre-dance tickets available. Junior leaders will have tickets available at the door.

Spectator seating is available in the balcony for a small charge for those who want to attend but don't want to be on the floor to dance.

Vacation dance has been held each year for about the past five years, explained club agent Charles Nikolai. It was started when a planning committee of junior leaders expressed interest in a get-together of schools during the holidays. It has been so successful that several school groups are now actively promoting inter-school events during the vacation break, Nikolai said.

Servicemen to Get $4 Million Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — How do you get together a traditional Christmas dinner for more than three million military men and women?

Well, you start with 360,000 pounds of shrimp for cocktails, add 2.4 million pounds of turkey, toss in 675,000 pounds of sweet potatoes, 360,000 pounds of cranberry sauce and on down the menu.

This Christmas American soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines around the world will sit down to a festive meal that is the closest thing to mom's own cooking the military can provide.

The total cost: $4,227,300. Value of the ration per man: $1.41.

Wholesale Buying

The Defense Personnel Support Center in Philadelphia started wholesale buying for Christmas dinner last July. Since then, suppliers have been delivering the goods to designated control points, cold-storage warehouses and dock assembly areas for direct shipment to troops.

A spokesman for the Philadelphia center explains it this way:

"We're wholesale buyers and we distribute to the military services and they distribute at the retail level. In other words, they send in their requisitions to us and we go out and buy it wholesale — if we don't already have it in stock — and ship it to them from the nearest requisition point."

Logistical Command

In Vietnam it's the Army's 1st Logistical Command that requisitions supplies to keep the 372,000 military personnel fed. It expects Christmas dinner with all the trimmings to be served to every fighting man there, except maybe for a few "in remote and isolated areas where small personnel groups are engaged in patrol activity."

Here's the menu: shrimp cocktail; roast turkey, corn bread, dressing, giblet gravy;

Hit Supply Depot

Later in the morning, the eight-engine bombers raided a North Vietnamese storage area about five miles above the Demilitarized Zone and near the Laotian border.

With the cease-fire hour drawing near, U.S. and allied forces began moving into defensive positions but left reconnaissance units in the field and outpost watches on station. Over North Vietnam, U.S. planes will keep up a "continued vigilance," a spokesman said.

Presumably this means planes will make reconnaissance patrols but there will be no bombing strikes during the truce Saturday and Sunday. Offshore, U.S. ships on picket duty will maintain a steady radar watch.

department in boating and water safety law enforcement, he said.

Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Fond du Lac, leader of the legislative finance committee, asked whether the department would reintroduce the special $1 pheasant and trout stamp bills it supported earlier. Voigt said he would back such a plan, but felt it could not introduce it because he made an agreement with the Legislature last year to abandon those bills in favor of increases in regular hunting license fees.

He said the extension of sport fishing license requirements to fishermen on Green Bay and Great Lakes waters, long exempt, is a "must" because of increasing work on fisheries' improvement for the benefit of such sportsmen.

About 48 per cent of the department's record budget request would be reserved for programs involving fish and game, about 34 per cent for all forestry activities and about 13 per cent for parks.

Voigt reminded Knowles that because his budget request is dependent upon specifically segregated revenues, it involves only a rise of 8 per cent over the present expenditure level, "which is modest against some of the spending increases you have received lately from other departments."

Already Evident

The trend for a broadening of the public tax base of conservation services which Voigt foresees already has become evident. Federal aid from general taxation of the national government is increasing in variety and volume, and now accounts for 12 per cent of the whole. Money from the Outdoors Recreation Act of 1961, derived from cigarette taxation, now accounts for about 14 per cent of the department's spending power and pays for more than half of the costs of the enlarging system of state parks.

Voigt pointedly reminded Knowles that because his budget request is dependent upon specifically segregated revenues, it involves only a rise of 8 per cent over the present expenditure level, "which is modest against some of the spending increases you have received lately from other departments."

Hospital Holiday For Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower will spend Christmas in the hospital, spokesmen say.

The general hoped to be out of Walter Reed Army Hospital and back to his Gettysburg, Pa., farm by Christmas following his Dec. 12 gall bladder operation.

But instead he'll be kept for what the hospital called a "few more days" of "further adjustment of medications and observation." The hospital quoted the Army surgeon general, Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, Thursday as saying Eisenhower's progress "has been excellent."

The State Motor Vehicle Department cited heavy weekend tolls the last two times when Christmas came on Sunday — 22 dead in 1955 and 17 dead in 1960.

The 1955 figure remains the state record for a Christmas weekend. Fifteen persons were killed during the holiday span in Wisconsin last year.

decided increase over the situation a year ago." He said Americans are ferrying troops by air to northeast Thailand to cope with insurgents there.

Mansfield said the Johnson administration has dealt carefully with Cambodia "and seems to be aware of the fact that Prince Norodom Sihanouk's policy is, if at all possible, to keep Cambodia for the Cambodians and apart from the struggle."

In Laos, Mansfield said, a year has brought little change. The country is still divided, he said, despite the theoretical, three-way coalition government.

Pondering steps to keep the Vietnam war in bounds, Mansfield said it might be possible to seal off the demilitarized zone between the South and the Communist North, and carry this line across Laos to Thailand, to choke off Communist infiltration.

Mansfield acknowledged there was little hope that the holiday truces in Vietnam would be extended through mid-February, as he has proposed.

Senator Thinks Cease-Fire Will Cost Many Lives

WINDER, Ga. (AP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., has predicted the Christmas and New Year's cease-fires in Vietnam will cost many American lives.

The Viet Cong, he said, will use the two truces to regroup and replenish supplies. "You can be sure they would not have suggested the truces if they did not expect to benefit from them militarily."

In an interview Thursday, Russell said the United States should bomb targets previously avoided instead of agreeing to the truces, which call for 48-hour suspensions of combat over Christmas and New Year's.

"We haven't hit any air fields yet," the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee added. "There are also a number of industrial plants in Hanoi and Haiphong that need to be taken out."

tion also included an admonition against drinking. It suggested to Yule party hosts:

Don't press drinks on guests who will be driving, have non-alcoholic beverages on hand, give guests ample time after drinking before they leave, and encourage pool riding with non-drinking drivers.

The State Medical Society said the future held promise for new car safety requirements and recommended that, until then motorists should make use of seat belts.

"We can bring accident figures down if all drivers will use common sense and their seat belts," said Dr. James L. Weygant, of Sheboygan Falls, a society official.

Last Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eife hung the stockings for their four children on the mantel of their Philadelphia home. Then in June the population jumped from four to eight with arrival of the Eife quadruplets. Mrs. Eife shows the 6-month-old quads the socks she'll hang up this Christmas Eve. U.S. Rushes Military Assistance to Jordan tant sources for weapons." The sources were not identified.

Although Eshkol reiterated in principle Israel's desire to respect existing frontiers, he said his nation was reserving its right of freedom of action in the crisis.

This was an apparent reference to the recent decision of the Arab Defense Council to move non-Jordanian troops to Jordan's border with Israel.

Censured By U.N.

The U.N. Security Council censured Israel for the Nov. 13 attack. Israel said it acted in reprisal for border raids by Arab terrorists.

Sources indicated the U.S. aid to Jordan includes armored personnel carriers to replace vehicles obtained after World War II from Britain.

"At the request of the Hashemite kingdom of Jordan the United States government has agreed to provide under its existing military assistance program certain items of military equipment to strengthen the defensive capability of the Jordanian armed forces," the announcement said.

"A substantial portion of this equipment will be airlifted to Jordan over the next 30 to 60 days. In addition to these deliveries, some of the F104 interceptor aircraft, previously purchased by Jordan, will be expedited," the State Department said.

Accused of Neglect

Hussein is considered a moderate and pro-Western Arab leader. After the Israeli attack last month, leaders of other Arab nations accused the king of neglecting his border defenses. Some elements, especially in Syria and Egypt, urged Jordanians to get rid of their king.

Sources indicated Jordan will get about 36 F104 planes. The exact number, however, is classified. Jordan will pay for the planes, but will receive the other equipment on a grant basis which apparently will double the present $4 million to $5 million a year military assistance to Jordan.

Tree Ordering Time

Spruce, Cedar Popular Species

Spruce trees, both Norway and White species and White Cedar trees are the most popular varieties being ordered for large rural plantations, according to Larry Christian, District Forester.

Christian services Outagamie, Winnebago and Calumet Counties for the Forest Management Division of the Wisconsin Conservation Department.

Orders for new trees are being accepted at the forester's office plus county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service and extension agents.

Last year 62,000 were delivered for Winnebago County, 50,000 for Outagamie and 19,000 for Calumet. So far this year 22,000 is on order from Winnebago, 13,000 from Outagamie and 3,500 for Calumet.

Hurry Orders

Christian urged persons considering tree orders to get them in before Jan. 1 to insure their getting choice trees. After that nursery stocks begin to dwindle.

Cost sharing is available in a number of instances and further details can be obtained from the ASCS offices. Many of the trees are used as windbreaks and shelterbelts.

More trees are being cut than recommended for harvest, an indication of improper cutting, and possible lack of sufficient manpower to mark all the timber stands and a lack of understanding by some landowners of the value of an organized cutting program.

Waupaca County ASC Office Secretary Wins $25 Award

Lorraine M. Jahsman, employee of Waupaca ASCS County Office, Manawa, was recently awarded a certificate of appreciation and a cash award of $25 for a suggestion approved under the ASCS incentive awards program.

She recommended that the notice of acreages, yields and payment rates applicable to feed grain programs should also include the price support rate for the farm. This enables the producer to more accurately determine the extent of his intended program participation prior to the sign up.

This presentation was made at a recent Orientation Meeting for ASCS Community Committeemen.

Question of Diesel Versus Gas Tractor Engine Is Considered

BY JOE L. WALKER
Waupaca County Agent

WAUPACA — Use of Diesel or gas engine is often the question when one purchases a new tractor. On the surface answer is not as simple as it may appear.

A young dairyman from Scandinavia confronted me with this question this past week and there are several factors to consider.

First, the original cost of the diesel is higher and a separate fuel storage tank must be used. Secondly, though overhaul jobs aren't as frequent when they are done it requires a highly skilled mechanic with specialized equipment.

The power factor is also discussed, however, the Nebraska tests show very little difference in the horsepower rating of a gas or diesel tractor of comparable make and model.

Fuel Saving

There is a positive side to this problem and the big one is the saving on fuel cost and the amount of fuel used. In most cases, the diesel fuel is two to three cents per gallon less than gasoline and, with a three to four plow tractor, we can use about 2.5 gallons of gasoline per hour or 1.7 gallons of diesel fuel per hour on comparable jobs.

The diesel engine will lug a bit better than the gas job. However, this isn't too important.

The University of Illinois Agricultural Engineering Department put all of these factors together for both the diesel and gas tractor and came up with a pretty good answer.

They found that, if the difference in cost of the diesel tractor and fuel storage is $800 and the fuel saving is two cents per gallon, a diesel tractor used 600 hours per year for 10 years will still cost $235 more than the comparable gas model. However, if we change the fuel saving to four cents per gallon, this same tractor at the end of 10 years will show a saving of $15. Again, a fairly small advantage.

Long Operation

The answer to this question lies in the fact that one must operate this unit over 700 to 800 hours per year and have a fuel saving of three to four cents per gallon before the diesel will show a substantial saving.

In any event, one should consider all of these factors before making the final choice as there is nothing magic about a diesel unit and the original cost difference doesn't come back real rapidly at two to three cents per gallon saving on fuel.

Shepherds from the plains of Bethlehem came first to praise the infant Christ. And later, other humble men . . . toilers and fishermen . . . became His supporters and spread the faith throughout the world.

Centuries later, in the hands of humble men, another cause grew and flourished. The cooperative idea, born among England's poverty-stricken weavers, was carried by nameless couriers throughout the world. It promised aid to the masses of humble people. It appealed to the hearts of men, and it helped to relieve their want and suffering.

That same spirit is the force behind our cooperatives of today:

Jet Fighters Sent to Aid In 'Defense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is rushing military equipment to Jordan in an apparent attempt to maintain a balance of power in the crisis-torn Middle East.

The State Department announced Thursday night the equipment included an undisclosed number of F104 jet fighter-bombers Jordan previously agreed to purchase, but it did not spell out the other kinds or

Annual Opening Of Truce Line

JERUSALEM (AP) — The road to Bethlehem was opened for Christmas pilgrims at 6 a. m. today as Israeli and Jordanian officials signaled the start of the traditional crossing of the armistice lines between Israel and Jordan.

Despite recent border tensions, all was peaceful and orderly at Mandelbaum Gate, where pilgrims cross into Jordan for a three-day stay amount of assistance the United States is providing "to strengthen the defensive capability of the Jordanian armed forces."

The announcement came shortly after the Jordanian government radio in Amman announced the resignation of the government of Premier Wasfi Tell. The department said the timing of the announcement of arms aid and the resignation of Tell's government was nothing more than a coincidence.

Reprisals Demanded
Tell's 22-month-old government has been under fire both in Jordan and in other Arab countries since a Nov. 13 Israeli attack on the Jordanian village of El Samu. Its opponents demanded strong retaliatory action against the Israelis.

Shortly before the U.S. announcement, Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol said in Tel Aviv his country had "new, most impor-

Traditional Support Not Enough

Conservation Wants More Money

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The hunter and the fisherman who have traditionally provided the major support for the basic recreation services of the State Conservation Department cannot be relied on to pay for the enlarging needs of the program and the demands of the general public, Gov. Warren P. Knowles was told Thursday.

Lester P. Voigt, director of the conservation department, presented the agency's $54 million biennial budget proposal at a public hearing, and asserted his view that the revenue base of the department must be broadened to satisfy the increasing volume and variety of the demands being made upon it.

More Pressures
Steadily increasing Wisconsin population, a rising volume of tourist visitors and increasing leisure time of all Americans will bring ever more pressures for services related to outdoors recreation, he said.

Voigt said his "forebodings" have been increased because of evidence that sporting license revenues have not kept pace with the increase in tourist traffic, indicating that many Wisconsin vacation visitors today have interests unrelated to fishing and hunting.

The veteran department official made his comments at the invitation of the governor, who said he is concerned about the long-range prospects for the support of outdoors recreation.

Voigt suggested higher park user fees probably are inevitable, and indicated he would support in the new Legislature a raise in the seasonal park sticker from $2 to $3 and the daily admission fee from 50 cents to $1.

Camping fees also probably will rise to meet higher costs, and the $3 boating license fee covering a three-year period probably is to low in view of the rapidly rising costs of the

War Erupts on Three Fronts On Eve of Christmas Truce

North Vietnam Shore Batteries Bombard U. S. Destroyer in Gulf

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Vietnam war erupted today in land, sea and air action on the eve of the two-day Christmas truce.

Communist shore batteries bombarded and damaged the U.S. destroyer O'Brien off the North Vietnamese coast, and in the northern part of South Vietnam U.S. Marines reported 110 Communists killed after a five-hour battle.

U.S. B52 bombers made two more raids today, one of them in North Vietnam five miles above the Demilitarized Zone. U.S. fighter-bombers kept up their attacks on both North and South Vietnam.

A Viet Cong detachment battled Saigon police for almost two hours tonight on southwestern outskirts about 2½ miles from the heart of the capital, then broke contact and withdrew. Police sources said the action was limited to an exchange of small-arms fire and grenades. There was no report of casualties on either side.

Shrapnel Damage
A U.S. spokesman reported the O'Brien came under heavy shelling from North Vietnamese coastal batteries this morning and took two hits on her port side as well as shrapnel damage. The spokesman said casualties on the destroyer were light.

It was the first time in the war that a U.S. warship received direct hits from enemy shore batteries.

The spokesman said the O'Brien fired 130 rounds from her five-inch guns at the Communist batteries while A4 Skyhawk jets from the carrier Kitty Hawk also attacked the gun positions.

The coastal duel, lasting about 15 minutes, took place 25 miles north-northeast of Dong

Hoi. The U.S. spokesman said the O'Brien was four miles offshore in international waters of the Gulf of Tonkin.

Under Own Power
He said the O'Brien left the scene under her own power, presumably headed for a base for repairs.

With the 48-hour Christmas truce scheduled to start at 7 a. m. Saturday Saigon time (6 p. m. EST today) U.S. Marines were reported still exchanging fire this afternoon with a Communist force estimated at about 500 men.

Units of the 26th Marine Regiment reported killing 110 of the enemy in fighting since midnight in the scrub country 16 miles northwest of Hue. These enemy losses swelled to 175 the Communists reported killed by the Marines since they launched Operation Chinook Tuesday.

Marine casualties were termed light.

Merger of AMC Hinted After Release of Report

Firm Reportedly Ready to Enter Electronics Field

DETROIT (AP)—Rumors persisted today that American Motors Corp., which has had problems in the auto sales market, might be in the market for a merger.

The name most frequently mentioned was Litton Industries, Inc., of Beverly Hills, Calif., a widely diversified electronics firm.

AMC's top two men said "no comment" Thursday when asked about the Litton rumors. Today, AMC President Roy Abernethy said, "The reports have no more status than a rumor. There is nothing to them."

There was no immediate comment from Litton officials.

Annual Report
The rumors popped up within hours after AMC released copies of its annual report showing that the firm had used up all but $4 million of a $75-million loan it negotiated with 24 banks.

The loans are secured by a mortgage on nearly all American Motors U.S. property and a pledge of the stock of its wholly owned subsidiaries.

AMC Board Chairman Robert B. Evans and Abernethy were in a meeting when word of the Litton rumors was sent in to them, with a newsmen's request for comment.

Observers were surprised that the firm issued only a "no comment" rather than issuing a denial of the report. Failure to deny the report appeared to some sources to indicate there was something to it.

$12 Million Loss
AMC's car sales have dipped in the past four years and it reported a net loss of $12 million for its 1966 fiscal year, the first time since 1957 that it went into the red.

Evans, who became AMC's biggest single stockholder and its chairman this year, had said repeatedly that he would like to see the firm diversify its operations, now limited to the automotive and the home appliance fields.

Mansfield Sees Vietnam-Style War in Thailand

Senate Leader Says 'Same Path' Is Being Trod

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield sees in troubled Thailand the seeds of another Vietnam-style war.

The early ingredients of the Vietnam war are there, he said. American troops are being sent to help cope with rebel forces, he added, and, as was once the case in Vietnam, they are cast as advisers, not combatants.

"We could very well have in prospect another Vietnam," Mansfield said in an interview Thursday. "Our policy in Thailand seems to be treading the same path."

And in Vietnam itself "I look for a long, drawn-out struggle," Mansfield said U.S. efforts at peace have produced "no progress toward a just settlement" and the danger of expanded conflict has increased in the past year.

'Out of Hand'
He saw a flicker of hope and a step in the right direction in the U.S. request that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant seek a Vietnam cease-fire.

"In a sense, it is a controlled, limited war," said the pensive, pipe-smoking Senate leader. "But it's a war which could get out of hand through miscalculation or accident."

"The war has escalated gradually, the dangers have increased," Mansfield said in a year-end assessment of the situation he analyzed 12 months ago as head of a Senate fact-finding team.

In a report published last Jan. 8, the Mansfield team warned that the war could engulf adjacent Laos, move into Cambodia and erupt, too, in Thailand.

Now, Mansfield said, the United States has 35,000 to 37,000 men in Thailand, "a very about 10 p. m., and the last was brought to safety at 1.20 a. m. The rescue of the last man touched off one of the most dramatic scenes in the fire department's history.

The man, who was conscious, was assisted by a dozen rescue squad firemen from the sagging structure whose collapsed floors had pinned him for hours.

Almost as if rehearsed, 100 firemen and police formed a double cordon and stood at attention. The stretcher was carried through the ceremonial corridor that extended a half block to a waiting ambulance.

More Cheers
The stretcher bearers — carefully following first-aid training not to shake an injured man — walked in broken step. The crowd cheered again.

Scores of firemen — like sailors climbing into the rigging of a sailing ship — clambered onto the apparatus and some of them lined up on the long, spidery girder of a water tower. They waved their hats. They clapped their hands. They yelled as the solemn procession moved toward the ambulance. The roars of the spectators grew louder.

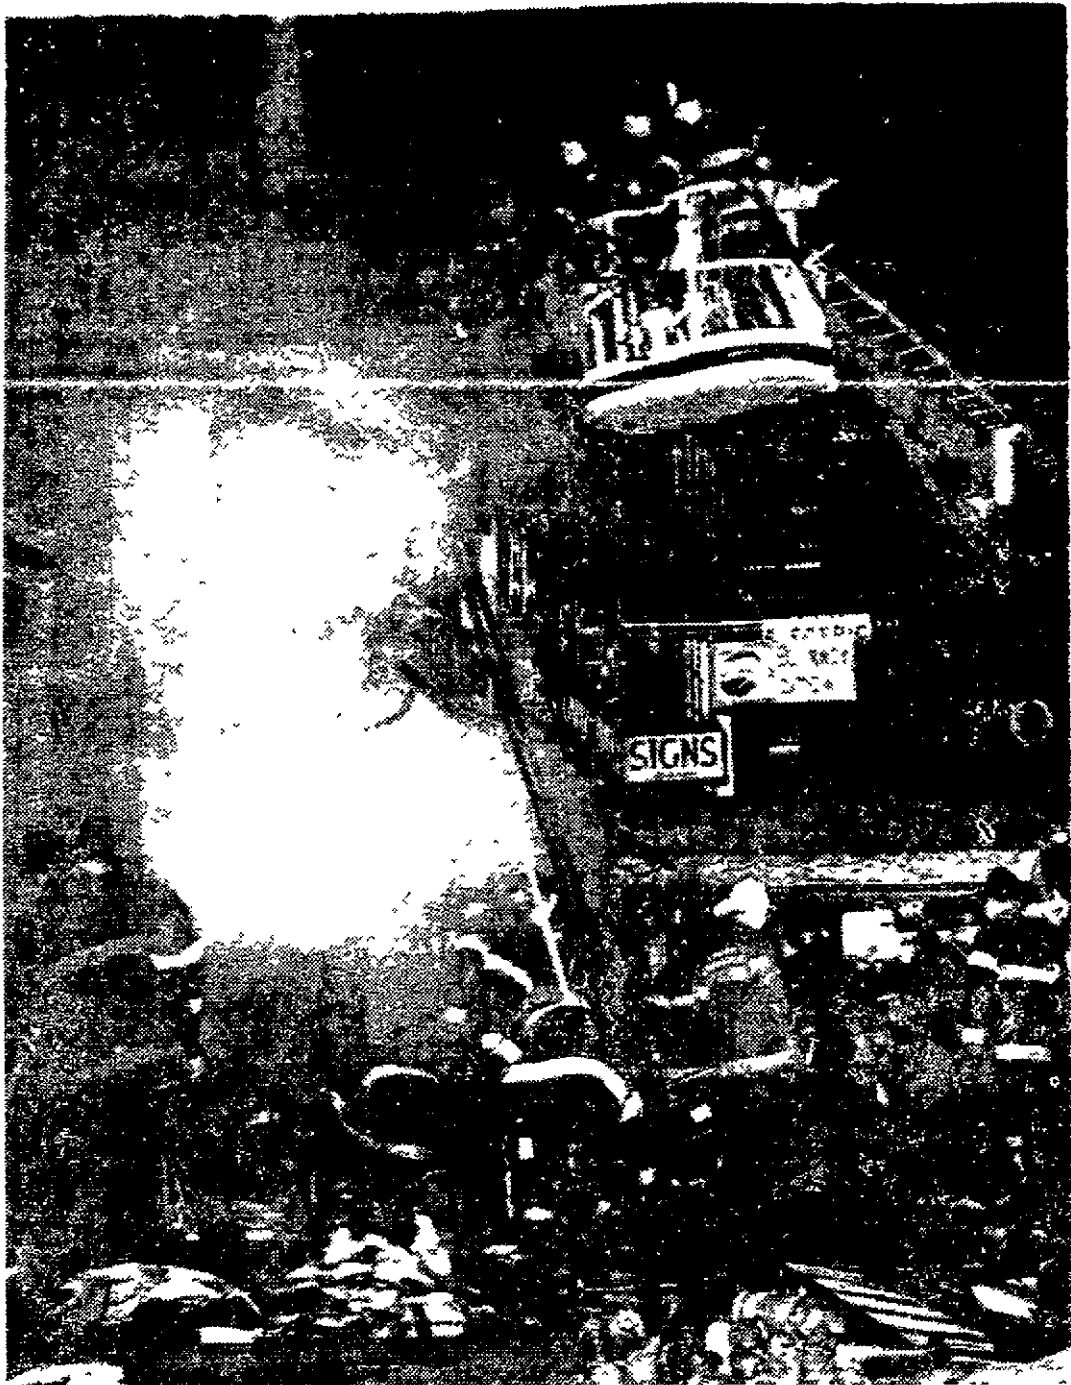

The fireman on the stretcher — his face red from the fire heat — lifted his head a bit and waved.

Thousands Cheer Firemen

NEW YORK (AP) — A Times Square area crowd of thousands cheered itself hoarse as firemen — risking death in flame and smoke with every step — rescued seven of their comrades trapped by a four-story building that collapsed on them.

One by one, the seven men were dragged out Thursday night and early today from behind blazing wreckage and tons of wood and metal which could have been their tomb.

The sixth man rescued — his face blackened and his uniform in smoking rags — sat up on a stretcher, grinned, waved to

Fire Commissioner Robert O. Lowery and gasped "Merry Christmas, commissioner." Lowery, stunned by the man's stamina and good cheer, snapped to attention and saluted. Then he shouted above the din: "Merry Christmas, fireman!"

Burst of Cheers
The episode brought a new burst of cheers from hundreds of firemen on the street and the spectators toward the front of the crowd watching the fire that wrecked an unoccupied building on 6th Avenue near 45th Street.

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately. The seven men were trapped

Four Deaths Hike State Toll to 1,084

Officials Plead For Care During Yule Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The bloodbath on Wisconsin highways continued to mount with the deaths of four more persons. The deaths increased the state's 1966 traffic fatality count to 1,084, 25 more than were killed in the record year, 1964. The toll on this date last year was 1,003 and 1,044 at this time in 1964.

Elmer K. Walby, 75, of River

Falls was struck and killed Thursday while crossing State 35, about one half mile north of River Falls.

Two persons were killed Thursday night in a head-on collision on State 43 about 12 miles west of Kenosha. They were Robert E. Jackley, 28, of rural Kansasville, a supervisor for American Motors Corp. at Kenosha; and Mrs. Margaret L. Feest, 21, of rural Union Grove. Each was alone in his car.

Martin Ludwigson, 81, of Nelson, died Dec. 20 at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Wabasha, Minn., of injuries suffered Dec. 18, when he was struck by a car while walking along State 95 on the outskirts of Blair in Trempealeau County.

The hazards of holiday traffic brought pleas today for more driving care and warnings of drinking dangers.

Noting that Wisconsin already has reached a record in death on the highways this year, Gov. Warren P. Knowles said:

"It is literally a matter of survival."

Perseverance, Endurance, Patience

Westmoreland Predicts 'More of the Same' in 1967

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, today predicted "more of the same — heavy fighting" for American troops and their allies in Vietnam next year.

"We cannot expect in the future any dramatic turn of events. It will take perseverance, endurance on the battlefield and patience at home," Westmoreland said in an interview with the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Westmoreland, who said he could see no "military advantage" in extending any of the two-day holiday truces scheduled to begin Saturday, gave this outlook for American troops on the battlefields of Vietnam in 1967.

"During the coming year, I see really more of the same. I see a continued fight by the Vietnamese armed forces and her free world allies against the guerrilla, and I also see heavy fighting against the Viet Cong main force units and the North Vietnamese army troops."

"I believe the enemy will continue his guerrilla war," Westmoreland said, "but he will continue to move troops from North Vietnam to fight a so-called conventional war."

Westmoreland said he thought the most important step forward in 1966 was "in stopping the initiative by the main force or conventional forces, particularly those of North Vietnam."

He said evidence the enemy is having morale problems as a result of the turn of the fighting over the past year has shown up in the number of prisoners taken, the number of defectors and from interrogation of prisoners.

Asked how many more American troops he thinks may be needed "to get the job done" in Vietnam, Westmoreland said: "I frankly cannot answer. This depends on many factors, and only time will tell."

There now are nearly 375,000 U.S. military personnel in this country. A gradual but steady buildup is continuing.

Of reports that U.S. ground troops soon will be sent to the Mekong River Delta, Westmoreland said: "No decision has been made at this time to move troops to the delta at any specific date in the future. It is possible during the coming year that there may be some American troops deployed in that area."

Westmoreland said the major problems now faced in Vietnam are twofold. The first, he said, is the "problem of translating the nature of this war to the people at home, who must understand the situation if they are to support it. I think that some of the young men who have served in this environment will be some of the best emissaries in explaining the real nature of this conflict."

"Now secondly, I would say it's a matter of patience. We must have patience to deal with this very complex problem. We cannot expect in the future any dramatic turn of events. It will take perseverance, endurance on the battlefield and patience at home."

Man Charged In Wife Beating Awaits Hearing

Jerome Vosters Jailed in Lieu Of $2,000 Bond

Jerome J. Vosters, 48, route 4, Appleton, father of 11, is being held in the Outagamie County Jail in lieu of posting a $2,000 bond. The bond was set after he was arraigned late Thursday afternoon on a charge of aggravated battery brought in connection with the beating of his wife.

Vosters, who appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 with his attorney, asked for a preliminary hearing which Judge Gustave J. Keller set for Dec. 29.

In Hospital

Judge Keller said he would delay the preliminary hearing if Mrs. Vosters is not out of the hospital by Dec. 29. Outagamie County sheriff's investigators said she is being treated for severe cuts and bruises on her face, fractures of facial bones, broken teeth, and other face and head injuries.

Mrs. Vosters, 41, remains in Kaukauna Community Hospital where she was taken by ambulance from her Town of Freedom home early Thursday morning.

Felony Charge

Vosters, who told the court he is a farmer and a mill worker, had a bandage under his right eye and his right hand was heavily bandaged. The felony charge against Vosters alleges that he used his hands and feet in beating his wife.

Police, who were called to the Vosters home at 12:40 a.m. Thursday, were told that Vosters came home, broke several windows and allegedly then struck his wife on the face and head. Several of the couple's children were home at the time. They have since been placed in the homes of relatives.

Young Offenders Continue To Plague Appleton Police

Teen-Agers Caught for Burglary; Drunken Girl, 15, Found in Alley

Problems with teen-age offenders continue to plague Appleton police who Wednesday night dealt with two youths who stole church donations and a sweater, three youths who were caught in the Knights of Pythias Hall and a drunken girl found lying in a downtown alley.

All of the youths were 15 years old. Those caught for the burglaries and thefts were placed in juvenile custody at the county jail, while the girl was released to her father who police said "carried" her from the police station. A police captain found her lying behind the H. C. Prange Co. about 9:15 p.m.

Police received a telephone call at 10:50 p.m. reporting three youths had entered the Knights of Pythias Hall at 205 E. Lawrence St.

A patrolman who responded to the call said he found the rear door ajar and a small window broken. He heard "muffled talking" inside the building, then heard footsteps near the rear entrance.

Upon spotting the youths running from the building, he ordered them to halt. When they kept running, he shouted an order to halt or he would shoot. The youths stopped and raised their hands, the patrolman said. The third youth escaped, but was identified and was apprehended at his home.

On questioning, one of the youths told police that he and one of the others apprehended at the Knights of Pythias Hall were involved in several other burglaries in the past couple of weeks.

Opened Safe

He admitted they burglarized Jackson School and the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church this week. Police were told the youths broke a boiler room window at Jackson School where they then went into the office, opened a safe and stole about $50 or $60. They also took a large quantity of savings stamps which they later dumped into street sewers on the northeast side.

Entry into the church was gained by breaking a basement window. They apparently took nothing from the church.

On further questioning, the youths admitted breaking into St. Thomas More School early last Saturday morning. They broke several door glasses and windows and stole $30 or $35 from the office, they said.

They also admitted three house burglaries on N. McDonald Street last week. Liquor, money and a pistol were taken in the burglaries.

Spent Money

The youths said they spent most of the money obtained in the house and school burglaries to play pool, gamble, eat and drink.

Two other 15-year-olds were placed in custody after they stole a sweater from the W. A. Close store, 200 E. College Ave. Police apprehended the youths after a chase that ended at a downtown restaurant.

Police said they believe the same pair also was involved in the theft of an undetermined amount of money from St. Joseph School, 404 W. Lawrence St., Wednesday night.

The money was in a pile of donation envelopes on a hallway table.

A trail of empty envelopes led to the west entrance of the school where 31 empty envelopes were found. The youths reportedly overlooked about $6.85 in envelopes which they discarded.

Cookies that were near the money on the hallway table also were missing, police were told.

Icy Road Conditions Listed as Factor in Crash at New London

NEW LONDON — Damage estimated at $550 resulted from a two-car collision at 1:20 a.m. Thursday at Jennings and Lawrence streets.

City police said a car driven by Victoria A. Visocky, 317 McKinley St., was traveling west on Jennings Street and a car driven by Edward F. Klitzke, 22, route 2, Shiocton, north on Lawrence Street when they collided.

Neither driver was able to stop because of icy road conditions, police said.

Woman Charged in Rural Chilton Death

Cora Belle Young to Answer Second Degree Murder Count

MANITOWOC — Cora Belle Young, 29, route 4, Chilton, Thursday afternoon was charged with second degree murder after the man with whom she had been living was found dead of bullet wounds early Thursday morning in their home near the Calumet-Manitowoc county line.

Judge Harold W. Mueller, Manitowoc County Court Branch 2, continued the case from day to day to allow the woman to consult an attorney. She was jailed in lieu of $20,000 bond.

The complaint against the woman was issued using the name Cora Belle Young, "also known as Cora Belle Orr."

The charge stems from the death of Robert G. Orr, 38, route 4, Chilton. Orr died early Thursday morning of two .22 caliber bullet wounds in the chest.

Manitowoc County authorities said they were called to Orr's home at 6:10 a.m. Thursday by the woman who was later charged with murder. After an investigation of about four hours, county police took the woman to Manitowoc where the charge was made.

During an early afternoon hearing in County Court, Cora Young told the court she had been living with Orr for more than three years. She said she was the mother of nine children.

Facility Will Cost $250,000

CHILTON — Construction has started on the new $250,000 Wisconsin Public Service Corp. building on Calumet Street, and the firm hopes to move by early summer.

Norman Bechlem, office manager, said the move from the downtown area to Chilton's south side, will for the first time, consolidate all gas and electric operations under one roof. The firm had previously worked out of three buildings, located in different parts of town. Now, sales, administrative offices, the garage and warehouse will be in one place for convenience to the customers and to employees.

Brick Front

Hedrich Construction Co., Chilton, was successful bidder for the modern structure which will have a brick front and concrete block sides and back.

Located on the south side of Calumet Street, the modernistic sales and display room will face north, with an entrance on the east side of the building, from the parking lot, which will have room for about 25 cars. "Our customers had to fight for parking space before," Bechlem said, referring to the E. Main Street office now used by the firm.

Large Lot

The building is going up on a lot measuring 269 by 575 feet. The greatest share of the building space is allocated to the garage for trucks and equipment. The garage will be 70 by 140 feet.

The sales floor and office take up an area 70 by 108 feet, and the warehouse portion will measure 51 by 86 feet.

The present office building and warehouse are up for sale. The office building was built in 1926 on the site of the old steam plant, and the company has served the Chilton-Brillion area from this spot since that time.

Post-Crescent Workers Reject International

Pressmen Accuse Firm of Unfair Labor Practices

Composing department employees of The Post-Crescent voted Thursday to retain the Post-Crescent Craftsmen's Union as their bargaining representative in an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

The International Printing Pressmen's and Assistant's Union had petitioned the NLRB to become the bargaining agent for the unit. The vote was 45 for the PCCU, 17 for the IPPAU and 1 vote for neither union.

The PCCU has represented all production workers of the newspaper for over 40 years. Recently, however, the Pressmen's Union won an election to represent the 16 employees in the press-stereo department and the Lithographers and Photoengravers International Union won representation rights in the five-man engraving department.

File Charges

The Pressmen's Union has also petitioned the NLRB to become bargaining agent for a new unit at the newspaper consisting of three janitors and the electrician. NLRB Examiner Kenneth Rock of Milwaukee conducted a hearing on that petition in Appleton Wednesday.

The Pressmen's Union has also filed unfair labor practice charges against the company in connection with the representation election in the composing department. The union accused the company of attempting to influence the election in favor of the PCCU. Examiner Rock is conducting an investigation into the charges for the NLRB.

Contract negotiations are currently being conducted by the company with all three unions.

Speaker-Elect Harold Froehlich Youngest to Take Post in 25 Years

MADISON — When Assemblyman Harold V. Froehlich (R-Appleton) takes over the post of speaker of the Wisconsin

Froehlich

Assembly on Jan. 11 he will be the youngest legislative presiding officer in a quarter of a century.

And he will be the first in 25 years to be elected to the top assembly job after only two terms of legislative service.

Of the 32 assembly speakers since 1890, 35-year-old Froehlich is one of the six youngest. He joins the ranks of well-known Wisconsin legislative names including Superior's Irvine L. Lenroot, who became speaker in 1901 at 34, and John W. Eber of Milwaukee who in 1927 was elected speaker at 32.

Milwaukee's Cornelius T. Young became speaker in 1933 at age 30, Minocqua's Paul Alfonsi in 1937 at age 29, and Richland Center's Vernon W. Thomson in 1939 at age 34.

The speaker has been the presiding officer of the assembly since Wisconsin became a state in 1848. Until the 1880s, legislators were elected annually and the legislature was convened every year. Then the biennial system of meeting every two years was adopted. Sixty-five assemblymen have served in the post of speaker since 1848.

While many well-known men have been speakers of the Assembly, only one, Vernon Thomson, became Governor. Two former speakers have been elected to the U.S. House of Representatives, one to the U.S. Senate, and one became Lieutenant Governor.

A similar policy has been in effect, but had not been drafted in official form before the adoption of the present schedule, authorities said.

"That is our purpose in inviting you to this conference: to share ideas as to what is ahead of us and how all phases of the dairy industry and consuming public can best respond to the challenges and opportunities of the future."

Let's Have Facts, Mr. Rusk

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has returned from visiting a great many European and Asian countries with the news that he thinks American forces in Vietnam will be bolstered by troops from some other countries before long.

We'd like some specifics. At the meeting of NATO Foreign Ministers in Paris, Secretary Rusk patiently explained that American borders extended all the way to Hawaii and that safety of those borders was a valid concern of the other members of NATO. The foreign ministers apparently nodded and then went back to talking about better relations between East and West Germany. Are the added troops to come from bankrupt England, France, which is opposed to our Vietnam policy, or even from West Germany which trades enthusiastically with Red China?

Well, then where else might there be assistance in view? Japan is concerned enough with the growth of China economically not to rock the boat and besides the Japanese are annoyed at the Koreans for fishing in waters the Japanese formerly had all to themselves. We probably can add some Korean troops to the Saigon area but that virtually means we have to send more Americans to beef up the Korean demarcation line. Thailand is calling for help from the United States in dealing with its own guerilla raiders and certainly there are no combat ready troops in Laos despite all the fracas in that area. Laotians anyway either prefer to fight each other or are extremely peace-loving, depending upon which government announcement you have just read.

Malaysia is having trouble enough planning for the departure of the last British troops and always keeping an eye upon Sukarno while Singapore must placate Red China. India disapproves of the Vietnamese war and Pakistan is China's good friend. Indonesia is broke. Possibly Australia or New Zealand or the Philippines might send more token squadrons. Currently the percentage of outside, non-American troops is about 2 per cent of the American forces in Vietnam.

Or is this the time at long last when we unleash Chiang Kai-shek?

The hard fact is that even if some other national leaders agree with our domino theory about the dangers of communism in Southeast Asia, they have no intentions of becoming seriously involved. In the first place they know that the United States has the military strength and the wealth needed to fight the war although winning it except by destroying most of North and South Vietnam may be in doubt whatever the size of the military forces. And in the second place no other country sees the conflict in Vietnam as any real national danger and they might even agree with the French point of view that it is high time the Americans had their comeuppance.

It may actually be that there is consideration in Washington to use the well-trained and well-supplied troops on Taiwan. But any such proposal is awful in its ramifications.

So we'll await further word from Secretary Rusk on the concrete results of his world tour. In the meantime it looks like an almost exclusively American war.

Christmas - Time for Stealing

God rest ye merry, gentlemen . . . but not too soundly. Someone may steal your Christmas decoration light bulbs.

It's that time of year again when the neighborhoods sparkle with dally decorated trees and displays, unless a bulb snatcher strikes. Unfortunately that strange breed of sneak thief is at work again in the Fox Cities, and there doesn't seem to be much that can be done about it besides normal vigilance.

The petty theft of light bulbs makes one wonder what type of individual is so destitute that it is necessary to steal 20-cent light bulbs to finance the next meal.

LBJ Visits Ike

Certainly we do not want to be overly critical of President Johnson in trying to get all the help and advice he can find to solve the very big issues of the war in Vietnam and the domestic problems that stem in great part from the war.

But we must have some suspicions that his visit to former President Eisenhower at Walter Reed Army Medical Center was more in keeping with President Johnson's usually well-tuned political ear.

Before he visited Mr. Eisenhower, President Johnson said he had one or two decisions he had been contemplating. "Now I know what I'm going to do about them," he told reporters with the clear implication that he found his answers in conversation with Mr. Eisenhower.

It may be that the ex-president has some sound advice for the current chief of state and certainly could give him the benefit of his experience.

And it certainly must have occurred to President Johnson that the nation was engaged in another unpopular war back in 1952 when Mr. Eisenhower promised to end that conflict and was subsequently elected to the White House. President Johnson's visit to the ex-president seems to be his way of getting some sort of a bipartisan foreign policy or at least to give that impression to the American public.

What Is the Statue of Liberty Doing

Americans may think that the Statue of Liberty is holding aloft her flame to light the way to our shores for the oppressed and abused. But that isn't the way author Albert Laurinchukas sees it.

The Statue of Liberty, he writes in his book The Third Side of the Dollar, is "chained forever to her rock, raising her hand and turning her back on the American shore, looking with hope to the East."

Laurinchukas has some other observations on the United States he saw while spending four years in this country as a journalist. "Why do Americans suffer from sleeplessness? If a person goes to bed feeling uncertain about tomorrow, when he knows he could make a million, but at the same time fears unemployment, when he hears the radio say he must build an atomic shelter, it is hard for him to have a natural refreshing sleep." Moreover, "if an American is not whipping himself to a pitch by drinking coffee at every possible moment, he becomes agitated and helpless and is unable to work. Coffee is the crutch of the American system . . . The New York subway is the dirtiest place in the world."

Laurinchukas may have presented his portrait of the Statue of Liberty for his native Russian readers. But there are some other reflections that have an uncomfortable proximity to the truth.

Looking Backward

Appleton Rake Factory Saved

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Dec. 22, 1866.

A large number of our readers will be glad to learn that this important factory (the Rake Factory) will be reopened for business without delay, all the judgements having been assumed or satisfied.

We presume the factory will be driven well up to its capacity. It is safe to say that it is capable of turning out $300,000 worth of agricultural implements per year. The establishment has stood idle about four months, being the bone of contention in sundry lawsuits. It is all right now.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 19, 1941.
The Rochester (N.Y.) Civic Orchestra was to play two compositions of La Vigna Maesch, professor of organ and music history at Lawrence College. The compositions "Pastorale" and "Festival," based on traditional English carols, were to be part of the symphony's NBC radio program.

Pupils in the model school department of Outagamie Rural Normal School presented a Christmas program for their mothers. June Willy gave a monologue. Hildegard Wunsch read the Christmas story. Helen Schomisch presented a violin solo. Evelyn Appleton gave Christmas readings, and a duet was sung by Floyd Doering and Eunice Verhagen.

Midshipman John Trautmann arrived home in Appleton for the holidays. The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Trautmann was at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 21, 1956.
The traditional "Santa Claus

Ride" was to be held the coming Sunday (Dec. 23) at Estherbrook Farm with the procession of riders led by Santa Claus astride his steed making their way through Appleton south side streets. The riders were to distribute gifts to children living in the area. Dr. and Mrs. S. F. Darling were to entertain the riders after the event.

Several young people presented the program at the Appleton Commandery's family Christmas party at the Masonic Temple. They included Debby Jean Wallen, Julie Schroeder, Christy and David Belking, Sandra Knoepke, Bobby Hayes, Billy Coggeshall, Allan and David Krabbe.

Red candles lighted the luncheon tables at the Christmas card party held by the Lady Elks. Winners for the afternoon included Mrs. W. J. Green and Mrs. Lee Fischer, first; Mrs. Stanley Stalid and Mrs. Arthur Jones, second; Mrs. Robert Roemer and Mrs. Simon O'Connell, third.

Taylor Writes

A Boy Borrowed for Christmas; Noted Taylor Column Reprinted

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

How little the deepest hopes of people change in our changed world and how much alike we really are if we are missing a happiness we seek.

In the firelight of a child's memory I am going back to a Christmas Eve, which for most of us is long ago, although to me it seems just yesterday. I was a boy, six years old, visiting my grandparents in the country outside Columbus, Ohio.

Taylor

There was snow everywhere that Christmas — blizzards and gusts of snow that hung to the trees and covered the fences — and the little house that was my home for the holidays looked like a great white mound except for the thin smoke rising from the chimney. Suddenly there was a trample of feet, like thunder, a loud "Whoa!" and a ripping and plowing of the snowdrift. There stood two great steaming black horses, towering over the doorway, frost hanging to their muzzles. My Uncle Ned jumped down from the sleigh. His face was red from the cold and he laughed like a blessed Santa Claus as he said, "Merry Christmas!"

TWINKLE IN HIS EYE

Then he walked up close to Mother, a twinkle in his eye, and glanced down at me over his shoulder, standing there in my copper-toed boots. "I want to borrow a boy for Christmas," he said. "Madie told me to get him even if I had to steal him. I'll have him back here bright and early tomorrow morning, ready to see what's in his stocking."

I was so astonished I could not speak. I do not think that any king or queen ever received more of a thrill than was mine at that moment.

Uncle Ned and Aunt Madie's home was on a farm a few miles away, and they had no children. The idea of the trip was all the paradise that I could ask at Christmas, for there was the surge of adventure in my heart and I had never slept even one night farther from my good mother than the next room. "Can I go?" I finally stammered. She smiled and nodded and told me to get my face washed.

How can I describe Uncle Ned's cottage and the Christmas Eve welcome — the one weatherbeaten and the other kindness raised on high. I can see every corner of that home — the blazing log in the fireplace; a canary bird that warbled beautifully, like the high note of a flute; a wall motto woven in colored thread that said: "Do Unto Others as You Would Have Others Do Unto You." But loneliness lived there, too, for had they not borrowed a boy for Christmas?

Time came for dinner. Aunt Madie put the whole set of blue dishes on the table and I sat next to her, a thick book under me to raise my head above the plate. Uncle Ned asked a blessing that contained not one word about devils and disaster. It was a plea to the Almighty that all of us might always remember the Golden Rule; that all of us might be properly grateful on this Christmas Eve for the bounties that have reached us in our great country. And there was a special blessing for the boy who had been borrowed at Christmas.

ALWAYS SMILING

I can see Aunt Madie's face now. She always smiled. In my childlike way I loved her deeply, and I could not keep my eyes off her face.

Aunt Madie caught my gaze as the meal went on and asked me, over the coffee pot, "Why do you look at me, Henry?" And I stammered because I was embarrassed and said, "Because I love you and you are so good."

What had I done! What had I done! Tears filled her eyes. She stood up and came around my chair with love, I suppose for all children, glowing, and placed her warm arms around me and kissed me, while Uncle Ned wheezed and said, "Madie, you ought to have had a dozen of your own."

Then evening came and the sparks were wonderful in the chimney. Aunt Madie took out a big, flat, tattered old book and sang in a low voice, "Silent Night, Holy Night." The little melodeon kept up with her and even the canary woke on its perch and trilled a few bars and the great sadness of this house was shut out on that Christmas Eve by fine people trying to be happy as best they could.

I was carried to a soft bed in Aunt Madie's room, and I heard Uncle Ned's deep voice saying, "Be sure to put plenty of cover over that boy." And I was away to dreamland.

Merry Christmas.

History Is Being Made When Milwaukee Begg State Treasury Help

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — To anyone with an appreciation of the political history of the state, there is a strange incongruity in the changing posture of metropolitan Milwaukee in state legislative affairs.

The largest population and industrial center of the state for years was regarded by the typical rural politician in the legislature as the richest source of tax money available for the succor of his own rural and small town constituents. Twenty years ago there was an active, organized and labeled group of rural lawmakers that had for its express purpose the funneling of tax revenues from the Milwaukee tax base into their rural districts.

Wyngaard

They called themselves "The Wood-Choppers," and represented generally the economically depressed and cut-over districts of the far north. Mostly they were Republicans, as the state was virtually a one-party state in those times. They wrote school aid laws, highway aid laws, welfare laws, with a keen eye upon the benefits for their counties and towns and local school districts. Milwaukee was regarded as a kind of patient and uncomplaining milking cow.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

All that has changed. Today Milwaukee is on the verge of becoming eligible for school "equalization" aids from Madison.

In the vocabulary of state capitol politics, "equalization" aid means a subsidy from the state treasury based on the idea that a community's school expenditure requirements are beyond the capacity of reasonable rates of local taxation to bear. The state in effect guarantees to pay the difference between an assumed taxation capacity and actual expenditures.

Today the mayor of Milwaukee, flanked by a corps of highly paid assistants with bulging brief-cases and grim faces, comes to Madison to demand that the governor and the legislature do something to relieve their financial problems on other fronts. The governor, moreover, greets them cordially, commiserates with them, offers cooperation in general terms, and doubtless wonders when the talks are over where the money will be raised when the biggest and wealthiest locality in the state occupies the role of supplicant.

There had been a tendency to write off Mayor Maier's state aid revision campaign as a local political gimmick, which no doubt it was incidentally. The mayor arranged to put on a referendum ballot in his city last fall a question about the advisability of collecting more help from the state treasury. If there was any surprise in the result, it was in the fact that nearly one voter out of five voted against the idea — presumably because he didn't understand it.

THE OUTLOOK

But Mr. Maier appears determined enough, whatever local political advantages he may be calculating. He is beefing up his lobbying staff for the new legislature.

He is buttering up other mayors, some of whom are responding without a real awareness of what his declared goals may mean for their own treasuries.

Events will demonstrate that the redistribution of state taxes and aids, which the mayor wants, is politically unattainable. Close examination will show that it is not capable of the miraculous results the mayor appears to claim. The consequences of the drive are more likely to be felt in additional transfers, sooner or later, of governmental service costs from the local property tax base to the state taxing machinery. That is what has already happened in the school aid formula, for example. When Milwaukee becomes eligible for school equalization grants soon, they won't represent deprivation of other communities, but shares in gradually rising state income, excise and sales taxes.

Local governments, large and small, are no longer able to nourish themselves and face a future of increasing dependency on the state.

Do We Forget Real Christmas Message?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everyone says that what is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too commercial" — but that is not the trouble. What is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too spiritual" — in the wrong way.

Harris

The commercial aspect of Christmas can easily be ignored or repudiated by anyone who wants to take this holiday seriously. But the false "spiritual" aspect is harder to separate from the true message.

The three wise men, and the star of Bethlehem, and the babe in the manger, and the mystery and the miracle — all these make it tempting and easy for us to forget what the whole story is about.

And the whole story — the whole message of the whole messiahship — can be summed up in two sentences from Jesus' own lips:

"If anyone says 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar." (1 John 4:20)

"Inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it unto me." (Matthew 25:40).

This is what Christmas — the mass of Christ — must mean, if it is to mean anything. If it does not mean this to us, then what we worship is superstition and idolatry.

You cannot love God without loving every fellow creature He made; and an act of contempt or rejection or injustice or neglect toward the least — the lowest, the poorest, the weakest, the dumbest — is an act against Him.

If Christianity does not mean this, it means nothing. If this central fact is ignored or slurred or rationalized away, the whole structure of Christianity falls apart, and we are left with nothing but another primitive "magic" religion.

And it is not the impious, the pagans and unbelievers, who must be most on guard against forgetting this message. It is the believers, the "spiritual" people, who mistake form for substance, pray for performance, worship for practice.

For Christianity is not a "spiritual" religion, like some religions of the East. It is an intensely "practical" religion, having its moral roots in the practicality of Judaism. It was not designed to change the way men think or believe as much as to change the way they act.

It is easy to think Christmas, and easy to believe Christmas; but it is hard — sometimes intolerably hard — to act Christmas. It is not our false commercialism that prevents it, but our false spirituality. Not the clang of the cash register, but the jingle of bells, calling us to sentimentality, and seducing us from the grim, patient, year-around task of brotherhood.

Appleton OK's $13,500 Gain in Street Program

Removing Roads From County System Will Increase City's Maintenance Aid

Appleton stands to gain about $13,500 in road maintenance aids as result of action taken by the council Wednesday night.

By unanimous vote, aldermen approved a street-sanitation committee recommendation to remove 12 portions of municipal streets from the Outagamie County trunk highway system.

The county now receives $972 per mile from the state for maintaining the roads, Ald. Roy Pointer (14th) explained.

By dropping them from the county-trunk system, the state allocation to Appleton will be $2,467 per mile.

Decision Predicated
The decision to remove the streets from the county system was predicated, in part, on information received at a recent meeting with Outagamie County Highway Commission officials.

Walter Rasmussen, city planner-traffic engineer, indicated previously it might be well for the city to consider removing the streets from the highway system.

Clarence Brownson, County Highway Commissioner, also said the transfer might work to the city's advantage in boosting the amount of state aids it receives.

Removed Streets
Among the streets removed from the trunk system are parts of Meade, Lawe, Spencer, John, Ballard Road, along with Prospect, Walter, Northland and College Avenues.

In other action, the council: — Directed the city engineering division to prepare plans and specifications for replacing the S. Island Street bridge, the funds to be provided from the $60,000 appropriation included in the 1967 for bridge repairs.

Request Denied
— Authorized the establishment of a bulkhead along the south bank of the Fox River from the western end of the Appleton Machine Co. property to the west end of the existing Allis-Chalmers bulkhead line, and from the Lawe Street bridge easterly approximately

Cost of Living Hike Smallest In Six Months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living edged upward again in November but the rise of one-tenth of 1 per cent was the smallest in six months, the Labor Department reported today.

"A decline of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in food prices almost 1 per cent in food prices almost consumer items, particularly housing, apparel, and medical care," the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The November advance brought the consumer price index to 114.6, a level 3.6 per cent above a year ago. This means that in November it cost $114.6 for a typical package of goods and services as compared with $100 in the 1957-59 base period.

Kenosha Mayor Resigns Post for Better-Paying Job

KENOSHA (AP) — Mayor Eugene R. Hammond resigned the $12,000 post as Kenosha's chief executive Thursday "with reluctance and regret" to take a job which would enable him to provide better support for his family. He has 11 children.

Hammond said he had been named a vice president of the Kenosha National Bank, but declined to say what his new salary would be.

In a statement, he noted that "the question has been raised" why he campaigned for re-election last spring if he intended to resign, and explained that at the time of the Jan. 25 filing deadline, a resolution was pending before the city council to raise his salary from $12,000 to $15,000.

The council rejected the pay increase at its February meeting.

Sen. Jerris Leonard Approved as Attorney In Suit Against State

MILWAUKEE (AP) — County Judge Michael T. Sullivan denied Wednesday a motion to remove State Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Bayside, as an attorney in a $10 million damage suit against the state and Milwaukee County.

The office of the corporation counsel contended that by acting as attorney for Cutler-Hammer, Inc., Leonard would be involved in a conflict of interest between his duties as a lawyer and a legislator.

Judge Sullivan said he could find no legal ban to Leonard's appearance in the case.

Cutler-Hammer seeks the $10 million in damages it contends was suffered as the result of the taking of its property for freeway purposes. It was awarded $300,000 for the property.

The impact killed five persons from nearby Paynesville, all related.

2 Americans Imprisoned In Vietnam

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — A Vietnamese special court convicted two American civilians Wednesday of currency violations and sentenced them to five years in prison.

The Americans were also fined $36,850 — the amount of U.S. military payment scrip they allegedly possessed when they were arrested in early October. There is no appeal from the court's ruling.

The men are Paul L. Bennett, 37, of Kong, N.C., formerly employed by RMK-BRJ, the big American construction combine in South Vietnam, and Meril V. Brown, 23, of Massillon, Ohio, who had worked for Sealand Transportation Co., another U.S. firm operating in Vietnam.

They were charged Oct. 4 with illegally attempting to avoid customs and export foreign exchange.

Bennett was fined $25,850 and Brown $11,000.

American consular officials said the men probably would serve their sentences in Saigon's Chi Hoa Prison. They said several other Americans are serving terms there for currency violations.

Yules Over World Different, Alike

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—From bustling Japanese department stores to Brazilian beaches and an Arab checkpoint in Jerusalem, people of the world are making ready to celebrate the birth day of Christ.

Some Christmas customs, such as the Polish rush to buy trees, are familiar in many lands. Others, such as street dancing in Ghana, are not. But all add up to the holiday formula: Faith, feasting and festivity.

Thousands of pilgrims will line up at Mandelbaum gate in Jerusalem to cross into Jordan for services in Bethlehem at the church of the Nativity, over the grotto where—tradition says—Jesus was born.

Depending on the country, the feasting will include roast suckling pig, carp, eel, goose, lamb or—more and more—turkey.

In Brazil, where Christmas usually brings crowds to the seashore, you give your girl a bikini and not have to wait six months to see her in it. The holiday comes at the beginning of the Brazilian summer.

Presents Only

JAPAN—Christmas has no religious meaning but store owners cashing in on an economic upswing have made it a commercial success. Sales, Christmas trees, Santa Claus and recorded carols lure Japanese to department stores in record numbers. Battery-operated toy monsters popularized by television are big sellers. Thousands of Christmas cakes with "Merry Xmas" written in chocolate across the top are sold at prices up to $2.

ITALY—Few Roman Catholic priests spoke out this year against the growing use of the yule tree instead of the creche and the trend to Santa Claus instead of the Good Witch Befana, who brings children gifts on Epiphany Day, Jan. 6. Factories produced tens of thousands of artificial trees, many for export to Europe and the United States. Children asked for rocket ships and space suits. Many families plan traditional eel and lamb dinners but stuffed capon and turkey are increasingly popular.

SOVIET UNION—For the first time, Father Frost, Russia's jolly, bearded version of Santa Claus, is making house calls. So are his granddaughters, the Snow Maidens. Father Frost traditionally put gifts under yule trees as children slept Christmas morning. The Communists changed that, and now his day is New Year's. This year, Detski Mir, Russia's biggest children's store, announced that for a 33-cent fee parents could arrange for Father Frost or a Snow Maiden to deliver presents to children in person. The response was overwhelming. By coincidence, deliveries start Dec. 25.

CUBA—Religious observances and Santa Claus are being de-emphasized in favor of year-end fiestas and celebration of the eight anniversary of Fidel Castro's victory Jan. 1. Food, drink and gifts are in short supply and rationed for "equal distribution."

JERUSALEM—Israeli and Jordanian officials set up tents at the border to cope with the 10,000 pilgrims—2,000 more than last year—who applied for three-day permits to visit Bethlehem.

Turkey 'In' Dish

GREAT BRITAIN—Turkeys at 63 to 70 cents a pound are "in" for Christmas dinners instead of the traditional goose. The teddy bear remains the favorite child's gift. The Bank of England says there is more cash in circulation than ever before, despite the economic crisis, and Christmas spending promises to set a record. In County Kent, home of Charles Dickens, author of "A Christmas Carol," a man named S. Claus was fined for a traffic offense.

BRAZIL—Parents are wondering how to pay for the gifts. Papa Noel—Santa Claus—leaves in children's shoes. Toy prices have nearly doubled in two years. Dolls—the most liked this year—are caricatures of popular singers—cost up to $30. Plastic machineguns and a tabletop auto racetrack for $35 are boys' favorites.

PHILIPPINES—A 14 per cent increase in food prices over the past year has not dampened Christmas, the country's most festive holiday. Santa Claus collects for charities on gayly lighted street corners, and of fices with piped-in music have heard only carols since Dec. 1. Nine days of predawn Roman Catholic Masses will be followed by midnight services Christmas Eve and lavish suppers of roast suckling pig and rice cakes.

Veterans' Ideas Differ

Procedures Incite Clash With City Aldermen

Two veteran Appleton aldermen including parking ramp and College Avenue reconstruction of public works procedures in handling of municipal projects.

It was unusual for Ald. Alvin E. Tews (5th) and Roy Pointer (14th) to openly air their differences.

Tews, chairman of the council's finance committee and a member of the parking commission, said he was concerned over the procedures being followed by the board of public works, and specifically Pointer, in expediting the avenue project.

Criticized Bid Opening

Tews was critical of the board for having disqualified some bidders on the College Avenue reconstruction project and not opening their bids. He said the board and council had the right to reject any and all bids and questioned why "some have to be judge and jury here."

"I feel that I can be real critical on the way some things are being handled here," Tews declared. "The impression I get is that there is railroad and too much rush," Tews declared.

Tews claimed, as a result, the board and city council were digressing from established procedures and policies, resulting in what he described as inconsistency.

"I think the city could have made a few more bucks here today had this matter (bid opening) been handled differently," Tews added.

Appleton Drafts Law On CATV Installations

Preliminary Proposal Indicates Operator Will Not Get Exclusive Rights in City

City officials are working on a preliminary ordinance which would permit one or more community antenna television operators (CATV) in Appleton.

A reliable source indicated today the ordinance will be introduced in the council soon through the street-sanitation committee with referral to the public safety committee for final recommendation.

The proposed CATV ordinance, which would license operators, has been proposed as Section 11.20, Chapter 11, of the city ordinances.

Need License

The ordinance says a CATV operator has to obtain a license from the city, and that operation of community antenna television service here would not be exclusive. The council would have the authority to grant additional licenses if it sees fit.

The proposed ordinance stipulates that CATV transmission would have to be confined to Wisconsin Telephone Co., Wis-personal injury and accident coverage from $100,000 to $500,000.

Any license okayed by the city would have to meet with requirements of the Federal Communications Commission, the ordinance says.

The city's director of inspections would be responsible for enforcing all rules on equipment installation.

Pay City

In return for a license, the CATV operator would pay the city $500, plus 2 per cent of the gross revenue. The city reserves the right to examine all records.

Violations of the ordinance requirements would be subject to a penalty.

There has been no official action taken by the city on the proposed ordinance.

More than a dozen companies and corporations have applied for the CATV franchise here, their applications being received several months ago.

The operator also would be required to have $100,000 property damage insurance, in addition to

Nuclear Tests Seen for Peking

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese businessmen reputed to be intimate with happenings inside China predict the Peking regime will undertake two or three nuclear rocket tests next year, including one from a nuclear-powered submarine in the Japan Sea, one of Japan's leading papers said Wednesday.

The Yomiuri Shimbun said that information from French business quarters indicated Red China began construction of a nuclear-powered sub in April 1964. It said the report indicated the sub is now making trial runs between Tientsin and Shanghai.

CATV applications are either pending, or have been denied, in other cities in the Fox Cities region.

AAL Grants Will Benefit Budget Study

Lutherans Also Get Help on Study Program for Blind

Grants from the Aid Association for Lutherans totalling $74,350, are making possible a system-wide analysis of staff budgets. The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod's higher education institutions.

Another grant of $5,000 for a new stereotype machine, will benefit education for the blind in 72 countries.

The education study, formally titled "Personnel Budget Study," began in 1964 and is expected to be completed for presentation to the New York synodical convention in 1967.

Better Plan

Primary aim of the study is to produce a better plan for "coordinating and articulating the professional ministries education program of the Missouri Synod. It was begun by Dr. Thomas Langevin, former academic dean of Concordia Teachers College, Seward, Neb., and is being finished by Prof. Lester Bayer, academic dean of Lutheran Concordia College, Austin, Texas.

Lutheran Braille Workers, Inc. will use the new stereotype machine to make zinc plates to reproduce braille texts in quantity. The texts, in braille and sight saving print, are produced by volunteers in 33 workshops in the United States.

Sight saving material is done in English, Braille is done in English, German, Spanish and Japanese.

Blind people, and those with limited sight, are furnished lessons and sermons, Easter and Christmas greetings, prayers and hymns and other Christian books free of charge.

Still Time To Purchase Late Gifts

Appleton Christmas shoppers who procrastinated need not panic immediately because most downtown stores will remain open all of Saturday afternoon.

The Appleton Downtown Retail Association, a division of the Chamber of Commerce, has recommended regular store closing hours of 5 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Several merchants have indicated they will lock their doors at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, officials of the organization said today.

Since Christmas is Sunday, Monday has been declared a legal holiday and the stores will not be open that day.

Association officials said, however, that most of the stores will remain open until 9 p.m. Tuesday allowing shoppers to make up for the lost day.

Tonight the stores will be open until the usual hour of 9 p.m.

Store schedules of this weekend will be repeated next weekend, association officials said. Merchants will keep their doors open until 9 p.m. Dec. 30, until 4:30 or 5 p.m. Dec. 31 (New Year's Eve), closed Jan. 1 and 2 and open until 9 p.m. Jan. 3.

Your Money's Worth Health Gyms Costing People Millions of $

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Would you — if you were among the nation's 14 million sufferers from arthritis — attempt to treat your disease by sitting in a "uranium tunnel" or by drinking "immune" milk from cows injected with certain vaccines, at $1.70 a quart?

Sylvia Porter

Would you believe that a machine fitted with dozens of dials, flashing lights, switches and meters could detect the "vibration rates" of your body organs and simply by "normalizing" those vibrations could treat just about any disease?

Would you buy a costly product from a door-to-door salesman who has informed you that you are suffering from "subcutaneous anxiety" — or who warns you that you are "aging before your time?"

Many Fall for Quacks

Chances are that you would do none of these things. But astonishing numbers of Americans do continue to fall for an unprecedented array of health quackery.

Every year more Americans lose their lives to health quackery than to all crimes of violence put together. And, says Dr. John W. Knutson, president of the National Health Council in New York, "not only is quackery an alarming barrier to good health care, it is also an economic scandal."

Every year, by one estimate, Americans spend more than $2 billion on quack diagnostic and therapeutic machines, phony drug "cures," utterly worthless "health foods" and ineffective weight reduction schemes. This is an amount equal to more money than we throw away on all other confidence schemes and swindlers put together. It is nearly three times the amount spent on medical education in the U.S. each year.

Health swindles are the leading type of mail fraud in the U.S. today, and they have been labeled by at least one law enforcement official as "Public Crime Number One."

Americans are more vulnerable to health quackery than ever before, says Dr. James L. Goddard, U.S. commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration in Washington, because they are more health-conscious than ever before, because they are increasingly bombarded by reports on the latest medical advances and because of the sheer size of today's market for medical care.

Last year we paid a total of $25.5 billion for medical care and voluntary health insurance. With an annual spending power of some $40 billion, the elderly have become the key targets — and key victims — of medical quackery.

"In this era of mechanical progress of storybook proportions," explained one Texas physician at an October Congress on Medical Quackery, "the idea of replacement of parts and maintenance of perpetual youthfulness seems altogether feasible."

Today's medical quack, unlike the silk-hatted charlatan of past generations, wears a white jacket and sports impressive looking diplomas on his office walls. He is a walking encyclopedia of pseudo-scientific terms and yard-long diagnoses. Or, says the FDA's Goddard, he "runs a special 'clinic' outfitted with all the wonderful gadgetry of a space-conscious nation."

But — like the old-time quack — today's medical swindler still cashes in on fear, fads, ignorance and the tragedy of a painful or terminal disease.

He thrives on the unfortunate fact that we still have not found cures for many forms of such widespread diseases as cancer, arthritis and mental illness. He rides with the latest fashions of health trends — such as today's national concern about overweight.

In the next four columns I will detail some of today's leading health gyms.

Rockin' Round the Valley New Sound Develops Bright Fox Cities Band

BY CHUCK POSNIAK

Area dance halls will be exhibiting a special feature in the near future called "New York After Dark."

You may think it strange that a dance hall would feature a movie, but "New York After Dark" is not a movie. It's a band.

Recently The Mystic Ones, a five-piece band from Menasha, lost two of its members, drummer and lead singer. To make up for this loss The Mystic Ones found a drummer who could sing. After a few practices with the newcomers, the Mystic Ones found that they were developing a completely new sound.

So to go along with this new sound they decided to get a new name. After many hours of deliberation they all agreed on the name of "New York After Dark." It certainly is different.

The main reason for the new sound of New York After Dark is the band's versatility. Under the name of The Mystic Ones, the band had one lead singer and little background singing.

All Four Sing

New York After Dark features all four members on lead vocals. With four different types of voices the band is able to do all types of music. The group, specializing in songs by the Animals and Rolling Stones, now is adding the styles of the Beatles, Byrds and Monkeys to its repertoire.

Since most of the members of the band like rhythm and blues, New York After Dark soon may add a saxophonist to the group.

Leader Carl Garrow

Leader and one of the two original members of the band is Carl Garrow. He plays organ and sings the high vocal parts. Although he's been playing organ only two years, he has become very adept. He now teaches organ at one of Appleton's music stores.

The other original member of the band is Bob Stowasser, who plays lead guitar and sings lead plus background.

A newer member is Bob Fufeld. He joined The Mystic Ones about two months ago after the band lost its bass guitarist. Bob began playing rhythm guitar for the Memories about three years ago. Then about two years ago he switched to bass guitar and has been playing bass ever since. Bob also sings lead and background parts.

Dean Martin Plays the suave super-agent in the spy adventure movie "Murderer's Row," currently showing at both the Viking Theater in Appleton and the Raulf Theater in Oshkosh. Other stars in the bright comedy with a cloak-and-dagger plot are Ann-Margret, James Gregory, Karl Malden and Beverly Adams.

Jimmy Joe VanHout

Jimmy Joe VanHout is the fourth and newest member of New York After Dark. Jimmy Joe entered the entertainment field as a drummer. He switched to organ about a year ago when he began playing with the Creed. After this group broke up, Jimmy Joe went back to drums. Having done much of the lead vocal work in the Creed, he also lends his vocals to the New York After Dark.

For the past few months the band has been making many changes in personnel, trying to get the right combination of musicians. The group now has this combination. I think because of it New York After Dark soon will rank with the best groups around.

All three groups, selected by the committee, were among the winners in the folk dance competition at the 1966 Holiday Folk Fair held in Milwaukee Nov. 18 through 20.

Ed Begley Behind the 8-Ball

BY TV SCOUT
6:30-7:30 (Channels 2-7-12) — What more can you say than that Ed Begley, that laudable Oscar winner, is behind the 8-ball on The Wild Wild West? Although he is no Minnesota Fats, he does play a mean game of billiards, and makes a crusty, interesting judge. Setting for this odd ball mystery is a Federal judges' convention where behind the somber robes of justice lurks a devilish plan to blow the place up.
6:30-7:30 (Channels 4-5) — The world is hardly ready for a computer jungle. But this is what you have on Tarzan. Henry Silva plays one of those demented scientists who has let automation take over his brain. He is convinced that his computer can predict which way the Ape Man swings. Our bare-chested hero, however, is equally confident that he has been "born free" and that his actions can outwit any machine. There is a $10,000 prize at stake. Also, Tarzan's life in this well-oiled script.
7-8 (Channels 11-6-9) — Time Tunnel digs a little bit deeper into history. Tony and Doug, who are always where the action is, find themselves in the Day invasion of World War II. The Nazis, of course, are convinced they are saboteurs. They also see the travel-weary duo as easy marks to try out their latest brainwashing techniques.
7:30-8:30 (Channels 4-5) — "The Jingle Bells Affair" is one of those "ho, humbug" tales you usually get at this time of year. Yet, despite its heavy sentimentality, it's a diverting exercise for The Man From U.N.C.L.E. Akim Tamiroff is wonderfully cast as a whiskery, Balkan bear who is a bit shaken when a dying lad and a pretty Salvation Army lass mistake him as "Santa Claus." Don't they realize his war-minded security chief (Leon Belasco) wants him to explode the tinsel of America's Christmas spirit? Like Scrooge, he has a lot of decisions to make before the weepy finale.
8-9 (Channels 11-6-9) — The Milton Berle Show lumbers along with a potpourri of noisy vaudeville. Yet it stops long enough to observe the holidays. Uncle Miltie's own son, five-year-old Billy, is on hand to add a bit of cheer. So are Mary Ann Mobley, the Dan Blocker Singers and Van Johnson. The blackout sketches, which poke fun at the terrors in Christmas shopping, are humorous. There is also a labored sketch on income taxes and more heckling by Irving Benson.
8-10 (Channels 2-7-12) — "Gay Purrr-ee," the animated cartoon on The Friday Night Movies is colorful, cute, tuneful and sugary. It also has the voices of Judy Garland and Robert Goulet to sing the songs of Harold Arlen and E. Y. Harburg, which are much more sophisticated than this fey little tale of a smitten French kitten deserves. Other voices you may recognize in this 1962 release are supplied by Red Buttons, Hermione Gingold and Morey Amsterdam.
8:30-9 (Channels 4-5) — "The Canary Who Lost His Voice" is a familiar song for T.H.E. Cat. However, there is some interest in why the underworld wants to do away with a kindly, bland, dusty old antique dealer played by James Dunn. There is also a bit of intrigue of why Janine Gray, a mobster's bird, wants to protect him. Or does she? It's enough to drive series hero Robert Loggia up the wall.
9-10 (Channels 11-6-9) — 12 O'Clock High, in its popshot method, has a tale fitting for the Christmas season. Good, old, reliable Lilia Skala once again turns up as a good, old, reliable nun. This time she fears the Allied planes are going to swoop down on her retreat and blow her nuns, pardon the expression, to Kingdom come. She knows the Nazis are using her retreat for a cover and she is a bit tired of their un-Christian behavior.
9-10 (Channels 4-5) — Laredo has a bit of fun with Thomas Gomez eating up its western backdrops playing a hammy Indian called Chief Kicking Bear. He will quit his attacks if Neville Brand will set up housekeeping in his daughter's teepee. But Brand doesn't think the girl, Lost Bird, is a lady.
